Executive Declares City in All Probability Will Borrow $250,000 for Education Board.

DELEGATION URGES NEW JUNIOR HIGH

$150,000 Will Be Needed To Erect Proposed School and $100,000 for November Salaries.

In all probability, the city of Atlanta will borrow $250,000 from Atlanta banks for use of the school department, Mayor Walter A. Sims stated Thursday following a visit to his office by a delegation of 60 men and women who urged that a new unit for the Hoke Smith Junior High school be built this year.

Of that amount, $150,000 is needed for construction of the new school unit, and approximately $100,000 to meet payrolls through November. No definite decision has been made as yet, however, and the entire matter will be threshed out at the finance committee meeting set for 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Repayment Next Year.

If the committee authorizes the mayor to borrow the money, it will be next year. Council already has voted the mayor authority to borrow $150,000 for the school project, but he reported that the banks had refused to lend the money until the board of education adopted a budget providing for salaries throughout the year.

The board then revised the budget, transferring sufficient funds to the salaries account to provide pay rolls through October. An additional $100,000, which would meet pay rolls through half of November, also can be raised by a further revision, but board members have stated that it would be impossible to obtain the other $100,000 necessary except through additional appropriations from the city. According to the present plan, December salaries, which are not due until January 1, will be paid from next year's appropriation.

It appears certain we will be forced to come one more to the aid of the school department," said Thursday. "There is no doubt as to the necessity of building a new unit for Hoke Smith, and I am very much in favor of it, but we cannot get the money from the banks until insurance is given that pay rolls can be met for the entire year."

Revised Budget. The board several weeks ago revised its budget to provide pay rolls through October, and decided to issue scrip for November salaries. However, the banks do not regard insurance of scrip as meeting pay rolls, and there is serious doubt as to whether or not they would honor such scrip.

Board members have assured me that if the city borrows enough money to make up the deficit in the pay-roll account, and also to build Hoke Smith High school, they will provide enough money to pay salaries through half of November. A loan of $250,000 would cover the entire amount needed."

Similar steps were taken last year, when the mayor borrowed $250,000 to meet pay rolls for October and November in order to keep schools open during the winter. The money was repaid by council early this year.

Several other matters, including a request of the water department for $10,000 for repairs on buildings, will be taken up at the finance committee meeting Saturday. It was announced by Alderman W. B. Duvall, chairman.

ENGLISH RADIO FAN WANTS ATLANTAN TO AID IN "DX" WORK

A radio enthusiast in England, John H. Best, of 401, Broad Street, York, who regularly hears programs broadcast by WGST, the Georgia Tech station, is an experimenter in "DX" radio work according to a letter to The Constitution, and is anxious to communicate with someone in Atlanta who might be interested in the same phase of radio.

Persons interested may communicate with him, his letter states, and he will advise of the details he wishes to follow in experiments.

Mr. Best is one of hundreds of English radio fans who regularly tune in on WGST programs. The station formerly operated as WGLM, of The Constitution, and is one of the most powerful broadcasters in the United States. The entire equipment was donated to Georgia Tech by Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution and a trustee of Georgia Tech, two years ago, to facilitate study of classes in radio engineering. The equipment represented an expenditure of about $10,000 and was donated with thousands of dollars and was donated with "strings." The apparatus was installed on the campus and its wave length and call letters changed to conform to the class required for school stations.

DRY SLEUTH QUILTS, TOOK FIFTY DRINKS A DAY AS EVIDENCE

San Francisco, April 30.—Don Ogle, former United States army captain, today retired from the federal prohibition enforcement department as an "under cover agent" ostensibly to engage in business for himself. Unofficially, however, Ogle disclosed that as an "under cover agent" he found it necessary to consume an average of 50 drinks of liquor daily. He said the number of drinks necessary for him to obtain evidence had totaled about 35,400 in two years.

Triple Execution Meted to Gunmen Who Slew Guards

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK As Seen By-- Pierre Van Paassen

New York, April 30.—The circus has pulled out of Madison Square Garden for the last time and workmen have actually begun the tearing down process. A press agent has hoped it out that during the last visit of the circus there were 412,000 spectators, who shared 6,750,352 peanuts with the 40 elephants. The number of ice cream cones consumed was 92,420, but there is no record of the sick "tummies."

At a reception given the other day in honor of a Spanish singer, the accompanist was an Englishman, while among the guest I talked with a Hungarian painter, an Italian sculptor, a Polish novelist, a French journalist and a Russian cotton merchant. The Frenchman and the German took a corner and argued for a solid hour and a half about "kultur." At times the conversation between the two became extremely animated. But nothing happened. The two drank innumerable cocktails and finally departed in a taxi. Several hours later when I passed a downtown restaurant I saw the two in quite mellow condition. The Frenchman was weeping on the other's shoulder.

When I was a boy I wanted to be a soldier and see a real war. I got my wish. Another thing I longed to see was a revolution; marching mobs, barricades in the streets, dashing charges, etc. The other day on reaching Union square I ran into a big crowd.

"What's doing?" "Oh, I guess the revolution is coming off today," said a fellow. I got ready to see the thing properly and had my observation post selected when four or five cops on horseback rode through the crowd, a bunch of fellows with billies swooped from a nearby building and chased the remnants of the crowd, and saved democracy once more. Later I heard the demonstration was part of a quarrel between two sections of the garment workers.

Of all the delights of youth surely the old-time street games, which were to be seen and heard in pre-war days in nearly every town of Europe and America, is one of the most pleasant. What fun, was it not, to watch the old boys playing the "tump" or blow up their cheeks to the size of red toy balloons.

They're back again. Brooklyn and the Bronx are said to be their favorite hangouts. I am going to be on the lookout for them.

Of course it's wrong to put mischievous thoughts in the heads of children. But brass bands in my mind are always associated with the trick of blowing a balloon. Nobody thoroughly upsets the peace of mind of the genial hornblowers. The youngsters will buy a lemon, cut up in slices and stick the pieces of straw around the musicians on the street corner. The sight of the lemon chewing kids will throw the musical program into the air. Nobody can even think of a lemon without having to swallow. And this plays the dickens with the playing, too.

There is sometimes a slight regret with me that I cannot see this city a hundred or a thousand years from now. Still, children one day will witness a gradual progress and development, the thing would probably be too big for the mind of a latter day Rip Van Winkle. Sky-scrapers half a mile high, moving streets, air ships landing and discharging passengers. No more trains, but pneumatic tubes shooting people in all directions, a futuristic prediction of the other day. The pneumatic tube idea is not so new. In the Camera Obscura published 75 years ago a Dutch skipper tries to scare a sailing ship with a description of such a device for travel. "Whizz-click and you're in Paris. Another whizz and another click and you're in Berlin." What else can I say now, future generations may call ridiculous dawning.

Three Italians Electro-cuted at Sing Sing for Killing Bank Messenger in Pay Roll Robbery.

ONE SMOKES CIGAR ON WAY TO CHAIR

Frantic Efforts Made by Mother and Sisters of Two Brothers To Save Their Lives.

Ossining, N. Y., April 30.—The Diamond brothers, Morris and Joseph, and John Farina, a trio of young gunmen who murdered two bank messengers in 1923, died Thursday night in a triple electrocution which had created more excitement in Great New York than any execution at Sing Sing prison in many years.

The attorneys and relatives who had fought until late Thursday to save the Diamond boys had stirred up so much interest in the case—an interest, heightened by the fact that they were the first two brothers to die together in more than 20 years—that there were nearly 1,000 applications to see them killed. Warden Lawes said that, as far as he knew, there had never been so many applications before for such an event. Only 35 spectators, including newspapermen, were allowed to enter the death chamber.

Day of Many Thrills. Morris Diamond went first to his death, followed by his brother, Joe, and Farina in turn. The news was flashed by wire into New York city, where for a day or two the immediate prospect of it had been more generally discussed than a world's series while in progress. This interest had been heightened by dramatic developments late in the day, when the lawyers and the two sisters and the mother of the Diamond boys had lost their final appeal in Brooklyn. The appeal had previously been turned down by Governor Smith.

Morris was brought into the chamber at 11:05 and within 32 minutes New York had been rid of these three of its most dangerous thugs. Morris was pronounced dead at 11:14. Joe, who entered at 11:21, was officially dead at 11:25, and Farina, who came in at 11:28, was declared dead at 11:37.

Both Fairly Calm. The Diamond boys went into the chair with comparative calm. Each, just before the fatal harness was clamped about his body, protested his innocence. Morris pointed out that he had fought for the United States during the war and said that he had loved a country that had given him an unfair trial.

"My mother, God help her, dear mother—," Joe exclaimed, almost in hysteria. "Good-bye, my mother and sisters, Good-bye!"

Joe referred to the mother who had collapsed again and again as the decision of the law had gone against her sons, and the sisters who had worked daily in all quarters where help might be had to save their lives. The three women had spent most of the evening in the death house.

They opened Joe's shirt after the electrocution and there on his white chest, underneath which the heart had stopped, was a small picture of the mother.

POSSES CLOSE UPON ABDUCTOR OF YOUNG GIRL

Man, With Girl, Seen and Fired Upon by Searcher; Posse Ordered To Get Ex-Convict Dead or Alive.

125 PICKED CADETS AIDING IN PURSUIT

Camping Outfit, Believed To Belong to Man Who Is Sought, Found on Abandoned Farm.

Granville, Vt., April 30.—One hundred armed citizens of this and adjacent towns, aided by 125 picked cadets from Norwich university, carrying rifles, were in Brookfield, near here tonight, following a bloodhound on what is believed to be the trail of Earl Woodward, navy deserter and former convict, accused of abducting 11-year-old Lucille Chatterton from her home here last Friday.

The cadets, headed by two United States army officers, were ordered to shoot if necessary, but only in case they could not capture their man alive.

Man Seen With Girl. The hunt, which has led armed posses over the hills and through the forests of this region for six days, took on a new intensity today when a man, with a girl, was seen and fired on by one of the searchers shortly before noon. The searcher reported that the pair fled. Alone, and armed with only a revolver, while the pursued man had a rifle, he turned back and summoned aid.

On an abandoned farm near Brookfield Center was found the simple camping outfit of the man. There were two blankets, a sack containing food, a kettle, and some oatmeal said to be that purchased by a stranger who came at nightfall to an isolated country store several days ago. Among the articles found was a box of colored crayons, such as might have been used by a child. An exploded cartridge also was found. Tonight, a bloodhound was put on the track of the pair.

Father Aids in Search. Aiding actively in the search was Walter Chatterton, father of the little girl, who has forsaken all else to aid in her rescue.

With the report that the girl had been seen today, a renewed hope came to searchers who feared that nearly a week in the open might have brought death to the child, as she was thinly clad. Fears also had been expressed that she might have been abandoned, so rapid was the pace of her abductor in eluding pursuit.

The cadets chosen for the pursuit were picked from the entire student body at Norwich. A request for volunteers met with unanimous response, and classes were suspended for the day. It was said the group now on duty would continue their search throughout the night if necessary.

Jailed Bandit Foiled in Bid For Freedom

Jack Spratlin Interrupted While Sawing Bars of His Cell.

Mysterious movements by Jack Spratlin, 23-year-old convict who was recaptured after escaping from the convict camp at Windor while serving a sentence for robbery Thursday night led to an investigation at police station which blocked his attempt to escape by sawing the bars of the window of his cell.

When discovered by Captain Grover Fain and Turnkey Pittman, police say that Spratlin had saved through one of the bars and was at work upon a second. The soft, easy swish of the hacksaw blade as it bit into the hard steel, coupled with the peculiar movements of the prisoner as he stood by the window, attracted the attention of the two officers as they strolled through the jail for a look at the prisoners.

Had Spratlin succeeded in sawing through enough of the bars to let himself through the window, probabilities are that he would have escaped, it was said, for the window faces an open court.

His efforts at escape being discovered, Spratlin is said to have calmly confessed to Captain Grover Fain and Detectives C. E. McCarty, L. D. Portwood and B. A. Davis that he had requested postponement of hearing on his case in recorder's court Tuesday afternoon in order that he might saw his way out of prison.

TEN COMMUNIST MEETINGS BROKEN UP IN NEW YORK; RIOTING LOOMS IN EUROPE

POLICE MOBILIZE TO HALT OUTRAGES OVER CONTINENT

Red Meetings Banned by Horthy in Austria; Moscow Blamed for Expected Trouble.

PARADES ALLOWED BY LONDON POLICE

Paris Air Police Ready for Emergency Duty; Battle Cry Sound by French Red Editor.

BY CHARLES M. MCCANN. London, April 30.—May day eve finds Europe nervous and ready, as nearly as she can be, to suppress terrorism wherever it may raise its head.

May day is the European labor day and the mild significance of the May pole dance has been lost in the shuffling cadence of workers' feet as they annually are dragged over the pavements in almost every European city.

From the western shores of Britain to the dead-line where communism meets Europe to the east, police precautions have been taken against outrages for which the dawn of May day might provide a signal. There is no unprejudiced person in Europe to say who plots these potential disorders. Western Europe puts the blame in Moscow, where it is immediately disclaimed.

Three thousand police and 2,000 detectives will supervise the May day workers' parade in Tokyo, while Paris will be guarded by reserves massed at strategic points.

Meetings Banned. In Budapest, where Admiral Horthy still administers the government he seized by force, a police order will prevent meetings and processions on May day and for three days thereafter. A huge bomb is reported to have been used in Riga and Bulgarian restrictions against popular demonstrations will be more severely enforced if possible.

While soviet Russian representatives in Rome and London issued statements denying complicity in the Bulgarian disorder and in plots to overthrow European governments, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, British home secretary and the cabinet officer in charge of British police, declared that a call of destruction hung over Europe. He said that the communists were constantly occupied in checking up the activities of persons endeavoring to subvert the government.

A great power is hanging over central Europe like a black pall bent on the destruction of every civilized country, which is its main purpose in life. Until that power decides to end its own affairs and leave us to mind ours, real friendship is impossible," he declared.

Sir William made it clear he refused to let soviet Russia say "Let them erase God's name from (Continued on Page 2, Column 3.)

Giant Aircraft To Visit Fair Next October

Harris Wires Constitution Willbur Has Given "Considerable Encouragement."

As an added impetus to plans of the Southeastern Fair association to make an extensive aeronautical display at this year's exposition, a telegram was received by The Constitution Thursday from Senator William J. Harris, indicating that one of the two giant navy dirigibles—the Shenandoah or the Los Angeles—will visit the fair here October 8-17.

The information was received after Senator Harris had interviewed Secretary of the Navy Willbur relative to the matter, and was given "considerable encouragement."

Coming as it does as an added feature to an already extensive program of aeronautics for the fair, the news that one of the huge airships will probably be in Atlanta this fall promises patrons of the exposition the greatest display of the kind ever witnessed in this section.

The Shenandoah made a trip through this section late last fall, and all Atlanta craned its neck to get a glimpse of the gigantic airship. If plans now on foot do not miscarry, the southeast will have an opportunity to see the same dirigible or her sister ship at close range again.

The text of the telegram from Senator Harris is as follows: "Have conferred with the secretary of the navy relative to sending the Shenandoah or Los Angeles to the Southeastern Fair, and am pleased that he gave me considerable encouragement. Will let you know definitely very soon."

New York, April 30.—If Mary MacSwiney, sister of the former lord mayor of Cork, landed in New York, she entered the United States illegally, according to Immigration Commissioner Curran.

"We have absolutely no record of the Irish republican advocate passing through the port of New York," Curran declared last Thursday.

Miss MacSwiney, sister of the late Terrence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, arrived here Thursday to deliver a series of lectures on the "Irish Republic." W. G. Nyquist, immigration inspector, asked her for an interview on arrival. It is understood that he is acting on orders from Washington to investigate her presence in this country without a passport.

After mentioning the eclipse theory of her arrival, she explained to newspaper men that, "of course," she had no intention of violating the laws of the United States, but that it would be impossible for her to accept a passport from the Irish free state.

She said that she "hadn't a notion" when she would go to the office of the immigration commission in Chicago, as she had been requested to do.

GEORGIA STUDENTS ASK ALUMNI MEET

Athens, Ga., April 30.—(Special.) In a second expression with reference to the new chancellor, students of the University of Georgia in a letter to Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia Alumni Society, say that "the choice can scarcely be what it should be unless the whole question is quickly brought out in the light of honest, frank, open discussion," and urge Judge Sibley to call a meeting of the alumni at once for such a purpose. "To our minds," declares the letter, "it (the selection) has too long been obscured in the fog of cautious secrecy."

The letter says that the board of trustees of the university failed to take official notice of the letter recently sent that body, and that "certain actions at its last meeting do not seem to indicate a passionate sympathy with the proper motives we had in view."

The trustees when they met in Athens last accepted the resignation of Chancellor Barrow and set June 12 for the election of the new chancellor. They also elected Judge George F. Guber of Marietta, president of the Lumpkin law school of the university. Judge Guber teaches constitutional law at the law school and is taught by the late Judge Andrew J. Cobb.

The full text of the student letter to Judge Sibley is: "Sir:—On March 9 we wrote the board of trustees and expressed student sentiment regarding the selection of a successor to Chancellor David C. Barrow, resigned. That letter was presented to the trustees in session.

"Some weeks have passed and no official notice of our communication has been taken. True, a few individual trustees replied, with varying degrees of approval. But the board itself has ignored our letter. More than that, certain actions taken by the board at its last gathering do not seem to indicate passionate sympathy with the proper motives we had in mind.

"We believe, no less firmly than we then believed, that the election of the next chancellor is probably the most important matter now before the people of Georgia. We desire, no less sincerely than we then desired, that the selection be wise and unselfish. And we think that the choice can scarcely be what it should be unless the whole question is quickly brought out into the light of honest, frank, open discussion. To our minds, it has too long been obscured in the fog of cautious secrecy."

Alumni Desires Action.

"You have, as president of the alumni society, authority to call a meeting whenever the situation demands. We urge you now to use that authority. We feel that the alumni of our university are, perhaps, more vitally concerned for her future than ever before—that they are only waiting for such a call in order to give evidence of their anxiety.

"People everywhere tell us that at this critical time you are among those who best understand the needs of the university. It is for this reason, as well as because of your official connection with the alumni, that we write to you this appeal.

"For the student body of the University of Georgia, signed by John D. Allen, chairman of the committee; Lester Hargrett, editor of The Georgia Cracker; I. H. Granath, editor of the Pandora, and William Tate, president of the student council.

their own country but leave us our religion and beliefs. Let them destroy them in private, but let them regarding the outlying parts of their own empire, but let them not ferment trouble in the British Empire.

From Lisbon comes word that the cruiser Carvalho Araujo has cleared port for an unknown destination laden with agitators whose deportation was ordered by the government.

An undersecretary speaking for the British home office in the house of commons Thursday assured members that the government was in closest touch with communist activities and had taken all necessary precautions to guard against direct action.

The usual May day parades of workers will occur throughout Great Britain Friday. The London march will terminate in Hyde Park where, under the shadow of the marble arch, communists and all others can speak their heresies under the protection of policemen, who have, on occasion, prevented angry crowds from attacking radicals whose views were too red.

COMMUNISTS GATHER IN PARIS FOR HOLIDAY.

Paris, April 30.—Communists are gathering in the suburbs in preparation for May day while thousands of police and troops are in their barracks ready to rush in auto trucks to any point where disorder threatens.

Police orders forbid workers' meetings in Paris, but several have been sanctioned in the suburbs. A trial flight of the police dirigible Thursday demonstrated that that arm of civic defense was ready for May day duty in the air, whence reports of suspicious gatherings will be wireless to headquarters. Planes will participate in the aerial patrol.

The minister of the interior, the military governor of Paris and police officials conferred Thursday and decided that "the strictest measures must be enforced to prevent the suburban meetings from degenerating into disorder. The communist organ L'Humanite urges the workers to battle for their rights in connection with the government's decision to permit a nationalist Jean of Arc celebration on May 10 and to forbid a workers' demonstration on May 1.

L'Humanite appeals to its followers to accept the fascist challenge and declares: "The red international must fight the white dictatorship."

10,000 WILL PROTEST BULGARIAN PERSECUTION.

London, April 30.—Ten thousand men, women and children will demonstrate before the Bulgarian legation Friday to protest against the persecution of Bulgarian workers. Labor officials announced. The demonstrators also will demand the release of "class war prisoners" held in Bulgarian prisons.

Labor's May day program will center about Hyde Park, whence the 10,000 are to march to the legation.

Flivvers - Florida Each Contribute To Defeat Radicals

Detroit, April 30.—Agitators fail in their political reform movement in this country because too many workmen "go to work in flivvers" and too many farmers spend their winters in Florida and California. E. E. Haynes, of the University of Iowa, told today's session of the Mississippi Valley Historical association.

"Our agitators are unwilling to admit that prosperity is the real obstacle to the success of their reform movements," Professor Haynes said. From a study of the recent third party movement, the speaker drew the conclusion that "no real nucleus for a radical party existed."

One Night in Jail Enough To Satisfy Woman Lawyer

Chicago, April 30.—One night in jail was enough for Mrs. Mary Belle Spencer, attorney, who was fined $50 yesterday by Judge C. A. Williams in criminal court for contempt of court. She paid the fine today and returned to her legal practice, husband and two children. Yesterday she chose jail. Judge Williams made public a resolution presented him by the jury which cleared Mrs. Spencer's client yesterday, saying Mrs. Spencer's conduct "was at times of a nature which would tend to disrupt the harmony of the court."

ments during the day and Morris made one, all of which were made public after their deaths. These declared again the innocence of which they could not convince the state of New York.

In his second statement Joe Diamond warned young people "to keep away from bad company" and to "love your parents."

Day of Many Thrills.

It had been a day of nerve-racking thrills for the doomed trio. As news of the eleventh-hour efforts in their behalf came to them, they wavered between hope and despair. Early in the day, after their heads had been shaved in anticipation of the copper death cap, guards frustrated an attempt by Farina to cheat the state in his death. Buried beneath two oranges which he carried in his hands, they found a toothbrush, sharpened at one end, with which he hoped to cut his throat.

Dressed in death suits of black, the Diamond brothers visited with their sisters for the last time Thursday afternoon. Bessie came to the prison early, but Sallie, who gave up her position in a Fifth Avenue store that she might carry on the fight for her brothers' lives, did not arrive until Justice Manning had rendered his decision. The parting was tearful and emotional.

TRIO KILLED GUARD IN DARING ROBBERY.

New York, April 30.—Of the numerous desperate crimes prevalent here in 1925, none stirred the metropolis more than the daring daylight robbery and ruthless murder of two bank messengers on the morning of November 14, for which the Diamond brothers, Morris and Joseph, and their buddy of the East Side streets, John Farina, paid the penalty in the electric chair at Sing Sing tonight.

The messengers, William Barlow, 65 years old, and William McLaughlin, 31, stepped from an elevated station of the West End subway, Brooklyn, with a sack containing $43,007, which they were conveying to the West End bank.

The two, mingling with the crowds, reached a landing in their descent of the stairs to the street, when an unmasked young edged up to Barlow, the leader, and held a pistol to his ribs.

Fired Without Provocation.

With no word spoken and no moment of hesitation, the gunman fired three shots into the body of Barlow, a former lieutenant of New York police, and a man known for his fearlessness.

McLaughlin, a world war veteran, who had taken the bank job because he "wanted a little excitement," drew his weapon and fired a couple of ineffectual shots before he went down under the fusillade of two men who had joined the slayer of Barlow.

The packet of money he carried was snatched from his dying hands and the gunmen fled to the street, menacing with their pistols crowds of men, women and children that milled about the bus station.

An automobile which had been held in waiting, with motor running, at the foot of the stairs, sped away with the desperadoes. The abandoned car, with bloody finger prints, was found at Bath Beach, a half-dozen miles away, a few hours later. Those tell-tale finger prints led to the arrest of Morris Diamond in Cleveland, Ohio, 11 days later.

Within a few days, three others were in custody—Morris' younger brother, Joseph, Farina and Anthony Pantano, youthful former clerk in the West End bank, alleged to have furnished the others with information concerning the movements of the messengers. A fifth man was sought. This was DeSarro, who escaped to worked with unflinching zeal for a commission of the death sentence.

District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn has announced that he will go abroad this summer to assist in the prosecution of DeSarro, who is to be tried for the murder at Palermo. Italian law does not provide for the extradition of persons charged with murder.

FT. BENNING SOLDIER IS KILLED BY TRAIN

Fort Benning, Ga., April 30.—Freeman W. Burgess, 21, a private in Battery A, 83rd field artillery, Fort Benning, was killed yesterday when he fell between two box cars of the narrow gauge railroad on the reservation. It was revealed today at the office of the post commandant.

Burgess enlisted at Flowerly Branch, Ga.

Trade Commission Adopts Policy of Greater Secrecy After Severe Internal Row

Full Publicity To Complaints Against Unfair Trade Practices Will Be Abandoned Hereafter.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, April 30.—A policy of greater secrecy has been adopted by the federal trade commission after a severe internal dispute.

The commission's decision to abandon its present method of giving full publicity to complaints against business concerns charged with unfair practices provoked an indignant dissent from Commissioner Huston Thompson, the only Wilson appointee left on the commission and the oldest in point of service. He said this was contrary to the law, would permit "star chamber proceedings," and was "wholly dangerous and pernicious to public welfare."

The most important feature of the policy of secrecy is the decision to prevent publicity regarding cases which are settled by stipulation—"out of court." If the commission hears of a firm which is putting false or misleading labels on its goods, for instance, and informally persuades the firm to stop the practice, no public record is to be made of the matter.

Muffer Put on Publicity. "When a case cannot be settled 'out of court,' and the commission files a formal complaint summoning the defendant to appear before it and give explanation, no mention is to be made of this action until the answer is in, or until sufficient time has elapsed to indicate that the defendant intends to reply. It has been the custom to make charges public before the answer is received, but this, it was held, causes unjustified damage when the charges are later dismissed.

"Parties whose practices the commission deems unlawful and who are willing to correct them should be encouraged to do so," the commission explained. "Publication of their agreement to do so, however, does not encourage them. It rather deters them, as many respondents, if their agreement is to be given publicity to be used by their rivals, will rather contest the case."

Dissenting from this decision, Commissioner Thompson said:

"I protest against the enactment of this rule. If the proposed rule had been in vogue at the time some 2,500 steel fabricators initiated before the federal trade commission an application for complaint against the United States Steel corporation to determine the so-called Pittsburgh method of pricing steel, the application could have been dismissed without a statement and thus the public would not have been informed, and I would not have been permitted to state my dissent."

The federal trade commission was proposed by Woodrow Wilson after his inauguration, as a method of dealing with the problem of unfair trade practices. It was created by an act of Congress in 1914. It was the first federal agency to be created by the Wilson administration. It was the first federal agency to be created by the Wilson administration.

Some businessmen's associations have always resented the work of the federal trade commission and several proposals to abolish it have been made in congress. After Harding became president, men of a more conservative tendency were appointed to the commission as vacancies occurred. The action in abolishing some methods of publicity is one of the results of this change of complexion on the commission.

Musician Convicted Of Forging Checks On Bok and Hughes

New York, April 30.—Victor B. Hedman, a musician, who presented a $125 check bearing the forged name of Edward W. Bok, to Rupert Hughes, playwright and author, today was sentenced to a maximum term of eight years and six months in Sing Sing prison.

Judge Mancuso called Hedman "an aristocrat of crime when a representative of the district attorney's office recited a long list of alleged forgeries and bogus check transactions the prisoner was accused of having negotiated."

PROCTOR HEAD OF SECRETARIES

Macon, Ga., April 30.—The Georgia Association of Commercial Secretaries was organized here today at a meeting of secretaries from 16 Georgia cities. W. H. Proctor, Dublin, was elected president. The other officers are: W. H. Foster, of Rome, and C. C. Thomas, Griffin, were elected vice presidents; J. T. Wheeler, West Point, secretary-treasurer.

The board of directors will be composed of the officers and M. D. Ainsworth, Macon; A. C. Newell, Atlanta, and J. M. Ashley, Valdosta.

A committee was named to draft a constitution and by-laws. R. E. L. Niel, of Albany, led the discussion of the need of legislation that will permit counties in the state to set aside so much money annually for advertising purposes.

A committee composed of R. E. L. Niel, P. H. Walker, Covington and J. C. Scarborough, Tifton, was appointed by the president to draft a bill to be presented at the next session of the Georgia legislature which would give each county the right to appropriate money for advertising purposes, provided they saw fit.

The need of chambers of commerce and county officials cooperating and using advertising to exploit the resources and advantages offered by a county were stressed in several talks on the subject. This was the main matter discussed after the election of officers.

The visitors were entertained at luncheon at noon. The meeting adjourned this afternoon.

JOHN T. BOIFEUILLET DRAWS SERVICE SALARY

Colonel John T. Boifeuille, member of the Georgia public service commission, Thursday drew his first salary for the year 1925, receiving a voucher covering the first quarter of the year. Colonel Boifeuille had not applied for any salary previously, because his right to his salary as a commissioner was in litigation. A. R. Bennett, Dodge county, who defeated Colonel Boifeuille for reelection last fall, claimed that he should have taken office on January 1, whereas Colonel Boifeuille contended that his term did not end until December 1. Other members of the commission voted 3 to 1 in favor of Colonel Boifeuille, and Mr. Bennett brought suit against the commission to compel it to recognize him as commissioner. He lost his case in Fulton superior court recently. The Georgia supreme court handed down a decision affirming the finding of the lower court.

Colonel Boifeuille made no effort to collect his salary as a commissioner while the case was in the courts, but now that it has been decided by the supreme court, accepted his salary for the first quarter and will continue to receive the salary until December 1.

EXPLORER SCOUTS VALUE OF DIRIGIBLE ON TRIP TO ARCTIC

New York, April 30.—Walter Well-ford, former Arctic explorer, and a former U. S. Navy aviator, today declared that he believes the MacMillan polar expedition this summer, which will be accompanied by three navy planes, has a good chance for success. But he does not believe a dirigible would be able to reach the pole, nor does he believe that the Los Angeles or the Shenandoah could be used effectively in rescue work should a rescue be necessary.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur had announced that the dirigibles would be utilized as rescue craft in case any mishap should befall the party.

PETROLEUM FREIGHT RATE HIKE IS ASKED

An increase in the rate on petroleum products between Savannah and Brunswick amounting to more than 50 per cent, and cancellation of special rates on gasoline and benzol from the two port cities to about 100 other towns in Georgia, is asked in a petition filed Thursday with the Georgia public service commission by the Southern Freight association, representing railroads in Georgia. Hearing on the petition has been set for May 12.

Carriers claim that the present charge of 17 1/2 cents per hundred on petroleum products between Savannah and Brunswick is too low and ask that it be increased to 25 cents. The average load tank car weighs about 60,000 pounds, according to W. M. Price, rate expert for the commission, and the increase asked would, therefore, amount to a large item per carload.

Regarding the rate from the seaports to various interior towns, the carriers urge cancellation of special rates to all points not provided with storage tank facilities, on the plea that shipments to such points do not justify special rates provided.

The Atlantic Refining company, of Brunswick, has notified the commission that it was opposed to the hearing to enter vigorous protest against granting petition of carriers.

Forty-Seven Students of the Southern Shorthand and Business University Go to Positions With Important Firms

F. J. Eisele Secures Good Position and Gives Much Praise to the Southern for His Business Success.

Forty-seven energetic, ambitious and worthy students have just gone out into the business world from the class rooms of the Southern Business College, and accepted responsible positions with leading firms, such as they have been prepared by the Southern to fill.

The Southern is "up and doing" all the time. There are no dull times at this school.

Its business of 1924 was the largest in its long existence of 39 years. Yet the first four months' business of this year has exceeded that of the corresponding months of last year by thirty-three per cent.

The Southern has the location, the equipment, the facilities, the systems and methods, and a peerless faculty. There is no wonder, therefore, that nearly everybody who wishes to be thoroughly trained for business, and who wishes to feel confident of a successful business career after completing a course, goes to the Southern.

F. J. Eisele, who has recently accepted a position with the W. & J. Sloane Rug and Carpet Manufacturers, G. Nairn, manager, writes that he owes his success to the splendid facilities of the Southern.

Following Mr. Eisele's letter below are given the names of forty-seven other recent pupils who are now happy over the fact that they attended the Southern Business College, because they are now receiving nice incomes from their pleasant positions, recently accepted.

"Atlanta, Ga., April 25, 1925. 'Messrs. Briscoe & Arnold, Proprietors Southern Shorthand & Business University, Atlanta, Ga. 'Gentlemen:

"I wish to thank you for the kind and courteous attention given me while a pupil of your school. I am proud to say that I am a former scholar of yours, and would advise any young man or woman seeking a good business training, to attend the Southern, which I think is the best up-to-date business college in Atlanta.

"With its splendid equipment and most excellent teaching facilities, I would say that any young man or young woman thinking of entering a business college should not miss visiting yours.

"I am at present employed by Mr. G. Nairn, Southern wholesale distributing manager for W. & J. Sloane, wholesale rug and carpet manufacturers, with offices in the Palmer Building, 191 Marietta street, Atlanta, Ga., and I owe my success to your splendid facilities.

"Wishing you success, I beg to remain,

"Yours very truly,

"F. J. EISELE."

Here they are. Do you know any of them? What a joy to read of the success of young people. It's an inspiration to others, and an incentive to "go and do likewise."

Miss Morell Everett, goes with the Southern Railway; Miss Gladys Holland, with Ampico & Edison Co.; Misses Nina and Velma Barrett, both with New England Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Miss Nancy Reitz, with White-Haines Optical Co.; Mrs. R. The following fifteen young ladies were sent at one time, on April 14, to the Florida Southern Abstract & Title Company, Bartow, Fla. This big concern applied for twenty-five in one letter, but there were only fifteen who desired positions in that state.

Misses Lois Stephens, Maude Cannon, Vera Chambers, Ruth Lewis, Dot Bray, Jessie Miller, Gray Miller, Rebecca Elmore, Hester Keerlin, Dora M. Layton, Mae Garrity, Flora Morgan, Irene Shirley, Mary McClure and Emma Doby.

The following have recently gone with important firms in Atlanta, La Grange and Washington:

Misses Virgie L. Conroy, Sara Richards, Mary Amos, Virginia Cunningham, Sara Murray, Lucy Thompson, Emmie Batson, Eleanor Turner, Alice Johnson, Mrs. J. C. Alexander and R. C. Ayers.

Now, young men, young women, don't procrastinate your business education. If you are not in school begin a business course next Monday or the next. Those who are yet in school should begin business courses within a week or two after leaving school or college. Don't waste three months vacation. Put in that time to great advantage. More will do so this summer at the Southern than ever before.

Call, phone or write for catalog. Address A. C. Briscoe, President, 56 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga. Phones Main 0251 and 0252.—(Adv.)

Seven States Will Be Represented; Winner Will Be Sent to Finals in Washington.

Aubrey Lauderdale, of LaGrange, Ga., today in Nashville, Tenn., met high school students from five other states in the zone finals of the national oratorical contest among high school students for the best 10-minute oration on the federal constitution.

Lauderdale was winner in the Georgia state finals held in Atlanta on April 23, defeating 11 other contestants, one from each congressional district.

Representatives in Nashville will come from Virginia, South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee.

Other Champions. Miss Evelyn Hurst, representing Sallada High school, Middlesex county, will be Virginia champion; Kennedy Green, of Shop Springs High school, is Tennessee winner; Robert Sessions, of Phillips High school, Birmingham, upholds the Alabama banner; while William Culp, of Chester High school, carries the honors for South Carolina. The contestants will deliver the same orations which won their state championships for them. The winner in the zone contest will then be eligible to compete in the national finals in Washington, D. C., May 8.

In Georgia this oratorical contest was sponsored by The Constitution and the Georgia High School association, while the national competition is sponsored by the American Bar association. Prizes of $15 were given each of the 12 Georgia district winners, and of $100 and $20 to winners of first and second places in the state contest by this paper. Additional prizes in the form of tickets to grand opera were given the two state winners by H. C. Thorburn, president of Kappa Kappa Psi.

Fielding Russell, of Winder High school, was winner of second place in the Georgia contest.

Seven Zone Winners. Seven zones were created in the United States for the purposes of this national contest so today in Nashville similar contests will be held in each of the other six zones. When the seven zone champions go to Washington on May 8 they will compete not only for the national championship but also for seven prizes which are given by the American Bar association. These range from $2,000 for first place to $300 for seventh.

Lauderdale, who will represent Georgia in Nashville today, is a student in LaGrange High school. He is 18 years of age and, in order to secure his education and prepare himself for a career as a lawyer, works in a cotton mill at night and ekes out his income by acting as janitor in the school as well as studying there in the daytime.

Survey of Needs Of Departments Of City Ordered

A survey of the needs of every city department was ordered Thursday by the special bond issue committee of city council, appointed last week to investigate the need of the $8,000,000 bond issue requested by Alderman J. L. Carpenter.

Comptroller B. Graham West was instructed to ascertain needs of each department, with their cost, and to report back to the committee at a meeting set for Thursday, May 14.

Mr. Carpenter's proposal calls for a referendum on an $8,000,000 issue, $4,000,000 of which would be paid for new school buildings; $2,000,000 for construction of viaducts over the railroad tracks at Central avenue and Pryor street, and $1,000,000 each for new sewers and water mains. The referendum also would give the people an opportunity to vote on a tax increase of 25c on each $100, necessary to provide interest and sinking funds for the bonds.

Alderman W. B. Hartfield appeared at the meeting to urge that the committee be instructed to state that it would place an unnecessary burden on taxpayers.

HOUSE NUMBERING CHANGES WILL BE CONSIDERED TODAY

With the proposed new house numbering system for Atlanta to be considered, a number of important street paving contracts to be awarded, and possibly that a subcommittee will report on investigation of charges that paving on many Atlanta streets has not been laid according to specifications, the street committee of city council faces a busy session this afternoon.

Councilman Horace Russell, chairman of the investigation committee, Thursday said that he has been negotiating with Andrew M. Fairlie, chemical engineer, to make tests of several asphalt and concrete streets laid during last year, but that no agreement has been reached yet.

The Torras house-numbering plan has been referred to the street committee by council, and also will be considered. It is expected that the plan will be approved without serious opposition.

According to this plan the city would be divided into four quarters by central base lines, and all houses would be numbered from the base lines. The plan is a revision of the continuous numbering system now in effect here.

500 City Teachers Registered To Vote On School Changes

More than 500 teachers in Atlanta schools have registered during the past two days for the school referendum set for June 10. It was estimated Thursday by City Clerk Walter C. Taylor, A. total of almost 1,000 persons registered during the two days, and it is estimated that at least half of them were school teachers.

Registration books will remain open until the day before the election, it was announced by Mr. Taylor. The referendum will decide whether financial control of the schools shall be returned to council; whether council shall elect members of the board of education; and whether the mayor and chairman of the school committee of council shall act as ex-officio members of the school board.

$80,000 AGAIN BY HIGHWAY BOARD

A warrant for $301,656.86 was paid to the state highway department Thursday by the state treasurer, after it had been properly drawn and countersigned by Comptroller General William A. Wright. This warrant was drawn against motor vehicle license funds, to the credit of the highway department in the treasury.

Two days previously, on April 28, a warrant for $278,445.32 was likewise honored for the highway department, being drawn against funds from the fuel oil tax, collected for the department. This makes a total of $580,102.18 paid to the highway department within the past three days.

These are the first warrants of any size drawn by the department in April, the last large amount being made to them on March 30, when a warrant for $272,000, which had been temporarily held up by General Wright on the grounds that the department was drawing money too fast, was finally paid. Over half a million dollars was drawn on March 19 in three warrants, and in view of the fact that this recent payment that General Wright held up the $272,000 warrant for several days before finally paying it on March 30.

LEADERS WILL DISCUSS WILSON MEMORIAL IDEA

Prominent Georgians, public officials and educators from all parts of the south, and friends and admirers of Woodrow Wilson from other states will attend a conference at the Capital City club here Wednesday, May 6, to hear of plans for establishing the Woodrow Wilson college in Georgia, and to discuss the memorial idea.

Boydhood friend of Wilson, who is chairman of the national movement to establish the college as a memorial to the great war president, will preside at the gathering. The conference will last all day and visitors will gather at luncheon in the club at 12:30 o'clock. Under direction of Mr. Stovall and members of the state executive committee of the campaign, the meeting has been arranged for the purpose of placing before forward-looking citizens of the south the plan to establish a fitting memorial to Woodrow Wilson. Well-known speakers, including personal friends of Wilson, will be present, and will present various aspects of the plans that have been worked out for the college, and the part that the institution will play in elevating the educational standard of the state. No funds will be solicited at this meeting, which has been called solely to enlist the interest of the people of the state. The appeal for $1,000,000 as Georgia's "pledge of faith" will be held during the latter part of May, following which a nationwide campaign will be held for the amount necessary to complete the college.

Members of the campaign organization, that has been set up in the 12 congressional districts throughout the state will attend the conference and innumerable parties are being organized to make the trip here from surrounding communities.

Governor H. L. Whitfield, of Mississippi, who is now attending a conference of educators in his own state and is particularly interested in education throughout the south, has written that he is very much in sympathy with the plan to establish Woodrow Wilson college and that he intends to be present at the conference. Public officials from Georgia who will attend include: Senator William J. Harris, who has proposed that special provision be made to train young men for the diplomatic service at Woodrow Wilson college; Senator Walter F. George, Congressman Charles G. Edwards, Congressman W. C. Candler, Governor Clifford Walker and Mayor Walter A. Sims, of Atlanta.

A reception committee including the following members of the state executive committee from Atlanta will welcome the visitors: Asa G. Candler, John S. Cohen, Clark Howell, Jr., Dr. Ashby Jones, Bolling H. Jones, Jerome Jones and Eugene R. Black.

Waste Paper Saving Cited as Valuable In Forestry Program

No woman would go out with an ax deliberately to destroy American timber, but the housewife who thoughtlessly throws away waste paper contributes just as wantonly to the destruction of American forests as though she did that very thing, according to local Salvation Army heads. Largely through the work of the social service department of the Salvation Army the public is seeing that discarded paper of all grades is a highly potential factor for good in both the social and economic life of the country.

The American Paper and Pulp association reports that six tons of newspaper is the equivalent of one acre of standing timber. Last year the Salvation army in Atlanta collected, sorted, baled and returned to the mills approximately 2,000 tons of paper of all grades, newspaper forming the bulk of the industry. A simple calculation shows that the Atlanta housewives last year, through the Salvation Army, conserved approximately 300 acres of standing timber.

Paper given the Salvation Army is collected, sorted and baled by men who have taken in and given an opportunity to work out their own salvation.

The work is done in the social service center, or industrial home, at 271 Luckie street. Here misguided and unfortunate men, repentant and hopeful, live and work under a religious influence and in a clean, wholesome environment until they have demonstrated their readiness to resume useful citizenship. The money realized through the sale of paper is used exclusively for the maintenance and extension of the work which is entirely self-supporting.

Jitney Bus Service For Parts of Third Ward Asked by Club

A petition to city council to restore jitney bus service in sections of the third ward not served by streets cars was voted Tuesday night at a meeting of the South Boulevard Improvement club held at the residence of R. C. Ailor, 600 South Boulevard. Members of the club stated that if service is not voted, they will establish a bus line to be run on a co-operative basis. They said that since elimination of jitneys, there is no service of any sort in some sections. Resolutions also were passed thanking L. L. Wallis, general manager of municipal parks, for extensive improvements at Grant park.

10-Year Minimum For Slayers Urged By Prison Board

Ten-year terms as minimum service for life-termers before they are eligible for parole, instead of the present three-year term, is urged by the Georgia prison commission in its annual report made public Thursday.

The three-year term for murder is considerably shorter than the minimum provided for many offenses less serious, it is shown in the report. Members of the commission stated that as soon as a life-termer completes three years of his sentence, he immediately files application for parole and starts a fight for freedom.

Ends of justice would be better served by a 10-year minimum term, the report says. Recommendation for a longer minimum term was made, the report shows, because there are 945 prisoners in state penal institutions serving life sentences for murder.

One prisoner less in the state prisons at the end of the 1924 term than at the end of 1923 was reported by the commission. Burglary came next in order on the list of crimes, with 670 prisoners sentenced for that offense. For manslaughter, 331 were sentenced; larceny, 317; attempt to murder, 249; and robbery, 142. A majority of prisoners are under the age of 27, and nearly a third have served more than one term, it is shown in the report.

DEATH CAR DRIVER HELD FOR HEARING

J. S. Stewart, of Lithonia, is being held under bond of $2,000, following the death Thursday morning of S. W. Durham, who was struck down about midnight Wednesday by Stewart's automobile, at the intersection of De Kalb and Mayson avenues.

Durham, according to police, stepped from a street car directly into the path of the Stewart automobile and was dragged a distance of several feet before the car could be stopped. He was picked up by H. H. Wimpsey, a passing autoist, and rushed to Grady hospital where every effort was made by surgeons to save his life. He died six hours later, never regaining consciousness. Stewart accompanied his victim to the hospital and maintained that the accident was unavoidable. He was arrested, however, on charges of reckless driving and the heavy bond assessed following Durham's death.

Durham, who was a motorman for the Georgia Railway and Power company, was 35 years of age, and resided at 49 North Mayson avenue.

With Stewart at the time of the crash were W. T. Evans, of Lithonia, and Curtis Holland and R. A. Patterson, of Atlanta. The men stated that the street car on which Durham was riding had started motion and that Stewart, accordingly, started his own car. Durham, they told police, stepped from the moving car into the path of the automobile and that it was impossible for Stewart to stop before running down the victim.

Stewart will be given a hearing in police court Friday morning. Funeral arrangements will not be completed until arrival here of Durham's brother, Charles Durham, of Roseboro, Oregon. In addition to this brother, Durham's widow, his father, J. O. Durham, of Forsyth county, and two brothers, Emory F. Durham, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Alfred Durham, of Atlanta, survive him.

TRIAL OF NEGRO SET FOR MAY 7

The trial of H. H. Dennis, of 53 Mildred street, negro automobile driver, who is alleged to have run down and fatally injured Mrs. W. A. Davies, of 233 East Tenth street, at Broad and Marietta streets on April 18, has been postponed until May 7. He was held on a charge of reckless driving.

The hearing was to have been on Thursday but due to failure of certain witnesses for the prosecution to appear at police court on account of an error in reports which gave the date for the hearing as May 7, the trial was postponed.

Dennis is under $1,000 bond. Mrs. Davies, according to witnesses, stepped from the curbing to cross to the safety zone in the street to board a street car, and was struck down by the car driven by Dennis. She died several hours later at Grady hospital.

MORE TIME GIVEN FOR TAX RETURNS

Fulton county taxpayers Thursday were granted a respite of a week or ten days in which to make their tax returns for 1925, it was announced by W. H. Abbott, tax receiver. This was because of the large response made by taxpayers in the past few days and the impossibility of serving all those who have not yet completed their returns. Books were scheduled to close Thursday.

"We have been swamped for the past two weeks with citizens who are anxious to make their returns and there are hundreds of others who will keep our office floor busy for at least another week," Mr. Abbott said. "Fulton county this year no doubt will set a precedent in the small number of delinquents which will be listed when the books are closed finally. Every effort is being made to give all taxpayers a chance to make their returns before the double tax penalty provided by law is put into effect."

RECORD ATTENDANCE SEEN FOR ELK SHOW

Indications of a record attendance at the Elks' big hippodrome circus, which opens Saturday night at the clubhouse, 78 East Ellis street, are shown by the brisk advance sale of tickets, it was stated Thursday by members of the committee in charge of the show.

Everything is in readiness for the opening at 7 o'clock and a dress rehearsal tonight will climax the intense period of drill put in during the past few weeks by all performers. The show will run eight days, closing Saturday, May 9.

All proceeds from the circus will be used to pay expenses of sending the "Purple Devils" patrol to Portland, Ore., in July to take part in the competitive drill to be held in connection with the national Elks' convention.

Cliff Daniel, director of the hippodrome, said Thursday that every member of the cast is ready for the show. All costumes are on hand and all details arranged.

CHECK BY GARAGES ON AUTO CRASHES LOST IN COMMITTEE

Action on a number of proposed amendments to the city zoning ordinance, and adoption of adverse reports on two proposed ordinances marked Thursday's meeting of the ordinance committee of city council.

The committee advised a measure proposed by Alderman J. R. Bachman which would force all private garages and service stations to report accidents to police headquarters within 24 hours of the time they were brought to attention of garage officials.

The intent of the measure was to permit police to keep a closer check on accidents and stolen cars. The committee, however, took the attitude that it would be practically impossible to enforce the bill.

An unfavorable report also was voted on an ordinance which would force all private and industrial schools to obtain city licenses in order to operate. The measure was sponsored by Councilman W. M. Etheridge.

The committee reversed the recommendation of the planning commission by favoring the proposal to change the southeast corner of Mayson avenue and Foster street from a dwelling house to business zone.

Councilman Horace Russell and Leo Sudderth voted for the measure, while Alderman W. B. Hartsfield signed an adverse report.

The petition of A. A. McCord to establish a business section at McLehman and Clifton streets, which has been the center of a bitter fight for several months, was withdrawn Thursday.

COMMITTEE VOTES TODAY ON CHANGES IN TRAFFIC LAWS

Setting aside of Peachtree, Whitehall and Forsyth streets as one-way streets for vehicular traffic; repeal of the ordinance making Poplar street a one-way thoroughfare from Broad street to the end, and a move to abolish all boulevard stop corners, will be among matters to be considered by the traffic committee of city council at a meeting called for 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Much opposition has developed to the plan of Councilman W. E. Saunders to limit Peachtree and Whitehall streets to northbound vehicles, and set aside Forsyth street for southbound vehicular traffic, and it is probable that the measure will be reversed.

Alderman C. M. Ford is sponsoring the measure to repeal the one-way ordinance on Poplar street. At present, he explained, motorists are confused because of the fact that Poplar is a two-way street between Broad and Peachtree street, while only one-way traffic is permitted on the remainder of the street.

Claims that the increasingly large number of boulevard stop corners is confusing motorists and making the traffic boulevard law difficult to enforce led to introduction of a measure to repeal all such corners. Alderman W. B. Hartsfield is father of the movement.

40 ATLANTA GIRLS ATTENDING SCOUT MEETING IN MACON

Forty Girl Scouts, chosen as delegates from their respective troops, are to go to Macon today to represent Atlanta at the Southern Regional Girl Scout convention to be held May 2-3. They were accompanied by Miss Ruth Kehrer, captain of troop 4; Miss Ethel Pharr, lieutenant of troop 7; Mrs. H. A. Provano, lieutenant of troop 9; Mrs. C. V. Girl Scouts from five southern states are expected to attend the convention. Mrs. Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts in America, will be the honor guest at the convention and will present a Golden Easlet badge, the highest award in scouting, to Helen Ross, of troop 3, Macon, Ga. Among others to receive badges will be Scout Betty Weisberg, troop 14, Atlanta, who will receive a silver and gold badge, and Scout Marian Fugitt, troop 11, Atlanta, who will be presented with cook and economist badges.

Miss Dorris Hough and Miss Corinne Chisholm, of the National Girl Scout staff, will attend the convention.

Ex-Governor Directs Coin Distribution In North Carolina

Appointment of Cameron Morrison, former governor, as chairman for North Carolina in the nation-wide distribution of Confederate Memorial half dollars was announced Thursday by Harvey J. Hill, director general of coin distribution.

Under the direction of Mr. Morrison, a state-wide organization reaching into every North Carolina county will be created, having as its object the placing of one or more of the memorial coins in every family.

Owing to the fact that there are only 2,500,000 coins of a special Confederate issue available, it has been necessary, Director General Hill announced, to make official allotments to each state based on population. The demand for coins reaching national headquarters already indicates a large over-subscription of the issue, officials assert.

Distribution, therefore, is to be made on the basis of coin certificates redeemable on July 3 at commercial banks throughout the south for the actual coins. Prior to that date coin certificates are being sold through commercial banks and through volunteer sales organizations organized in various communities.

With the appointment of Mr. Morrison in North Carolina, regular organization in all states east of the Mississippi river has now been effected, Mr. Hill declared.

The organization erected in each state has a quasi-official status, since state chairmen in each instance have been appointed by the governors, who have taken a deep personal interest in making the coin distribution the greatest patriotic demonstration that has taken place in the south since the war.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CONVENE HERE MAY 11

The state council of the Knights of Columbus will be held at Atlanta headquarters of the local council, 18 East Pine street on May 11. Extensive preparations are being made for entertainment of visiting delegates who will assemble from Savannah, Augusta, Macon, Columbus, Albany and other Georgia towns. State Deputy E. L. Kunze, of Columbus, will preside at all sessions.

The program will include conferring of the three degrees on Sunday, May 10, to a large class of candidates from Atlanta and north Georgia and it is expected that many delegates will reach Atlanta in time for the ceremonies.

Preparatory to the degree work, which will be conducted by a selected team from Roanoke, Va., candidates and members of No. 960, together with visiting Knights, will attend mass at 11 o'clock in the morning at Sacred Heart church. A sermon will be delivered by one of the Marist fathers.

At 1 o'clock candidates will report to the council chamber for initiation ceremonies. Banquet will be held at the Ansley hotel at night.

Monday's program will consist of a business session at 10 o'clock in the morning, which will adjourn for lunch at 1 o'clock. An auto ride to Stone Mountain has been arranged and officials and delegates will be tendered a banquet at the Capitol City club at 8 o'clock at night.

Entertainment arrangements are in the hands of R. A. Magill, chairman; J. H. Dillon, J. Ed Flint, Paul Hanley, M. C. Carroll, Jr., J. A. LaHatte, J. R. Oberst, J. G. Callaghan, J. J. Condon, Evelyn Harris.

The committee in charge of degree work for May 10 requests that all applications for candidates be submitted before Tuesday, May 5.

City Officials To Serve Terms Of Merger Wins

Under a ruling Thursday by City Attorney James L. Mayson, all officials now in office will serve out the full terms to which they have been elected, even if the movement to consolidate all city departments under seven heads should be successful.

According to his interpretation of the law, present officials would continue to serve even though their departments were consolidated with or placed under a separate head.

The proposed consolidation has been approved by the charter revision committee of city council, and if adopted by council Monday, a request will be sent to the legislature to amend the charter to permit the necessary changes.

"The city attorney's ruling should remove all opposition to the measure," Councilman John A. White, its author, stated Thursday. "Practically all of the opposition has come from office holders who fear that they will lose their jobs, but they now are reassured on that point, and should have no other reason for fighting the change."

The measure provides that department heads be elected by council, and serve terms of indefinite length, subject only to good behavior and continued efficiency. If authorized by the legislature, it would become effective January 1, 1926.

CAROLINA RAIDER IS EXONERATED OF KILLING 'LEGGER'

Danville, Va., April 30.—No action will be taken by Henry county authorities against Federal Prohibition Agent J. R. Pearson, who shot and killed Jesse Martin yesterday. Commonwealth's Attorney Joseph Taylor declared today. Mr. Taylor said he and the county coroner and sheriff had examined all eye-witnesses to the affair and that the federal officer had been "exonerated." A coroner's inquest was not deemed necessary.

Pearson was one of a party of federal prohibition enforcement agents who went to Henry county from North Carolina about ten days ago. Fifteen alleged bootleggers were taken by them up to yesterday, when they claimed Martin delivered 75 gallons of liquor to Pearson. Immediately upon the delivery he told Martin he was under arrest and Martin drew a pistol, but before he could fire was shot through the head by the officer.

of Misery?

There is no denying that 45 is an age of suffering and ill health for most women. But it need not be! Many women at 45 have perfect health and look years younger than they are.

Fortunately, blood that no longer performs these functions properly can be restored to healthy efficiency by Taylor's Blood Medicine.

Taylor's Blood Medicine nourishes the blood corpuscles back to perfect health. It destroys the impurities that lead to rheumatism, indigestion, kidney trouble and even to paralysis. Blood purified and enriched by Taylor's Blood Medicine keeps each organ and muscle vigorous with youthful vitality, ready for any strain.

COCA-COLA DISTRIBUTION PLANS COMPLETED

"Atlanta is organized for intensive work," according to Alfred C. Newell, chairman of the city-wide executive committee in the distribution of Confederate memorial half-dollars, following the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Thursday at noon. At the meeting executive committee members were formally introduced to each other and office plans announced for the city campaign.

Every member of the committee was assigned some definite task and in addition to talks made by Mr. Newell and Roy Tolleson, city campaign manager, talks were made by Robert F. Maddox, Preston S. Arkwright and Harvey J. Hill, national campaign director.

Mr. Maddox explained how the banking committee of the campaign had sent forth one man to apportion coins to several banks of the country and in less than a week had interested these banks to the extent of subscribing to $50,000 in coins. He told that in St. Louis the committee had sent telegrams to four of the leading banks and all four immediately telegraphed their hearty cooperation. Richmond banks asked for $150,000 in coins the first day.

Mrs. Samuel Inman was introduced to the executive committee by Mr. Maddox as "the great and loyal citizen of all Atlanta."

The state committee, through Preston S. Arkwright, chairman, has sent to every community in Georgia, according to his statement at the luncheon, letters and telegrams asking cooperation. He related that in each instance telegrams were at once received by him offering support.

Harvey J. Hill told the committee that there were only 2,300,000 Confederate memorial half-dollars immediately available; that 500,000 coins had been reserved for northern banks and communities; 300,000 coins have been reserved for every southern state on the Atlantic seaboard, and that only 500,000 coins have been reserved for distribution in the state of Georgia.

SOUTH CAROLINA YOUTH TAKEN HERE ON THEFT CHARGES

C. E. White and J. B. Smith, of Seneca, S. C., who are said to have arrived in Atlanta late Wednesday night, no sooner had appeared on the streets Thursday morning than they were arrested by Officers S. N. Hunt and W. A. Lawless, of Seneca, who were accompanied by Detectives Louis Zehl and A. E. Davis, of the Atlanta police department. Charges of robbing a store in the South Carolina city of a large quantity of wearing apparel were preferred against them.

The officers from Seneca came to Atlanta on the train immediately behind the one on which the boys arrived. They went to police station Thursday morning and, accompanied by the Atlanta officers, soon located the pair and placed them under arrest. White and Smith were taken back to Seneca Thursday night.

Veteran of War, Amnesia Victim, Reaches Atlanta

Charles Gordon, former Atlanta world war veteran, who was found in New Orleans several weeks ago in a state of amnesia, believed to be the result of shell shock, arrived in Atlanta Thursday as the ward of his sister, Mrs. W. A. Banks, of 19 Brown place, who is in hope of nursing him back to health.

Several weeks ago Gordon disappeared from his brother's home at Beaumont, Texas. His whereabouts were a complete mystery, and not until the Atlanta dispatches from New Orleans arrived in this city was he definitely identified. Arrangements were immediately made to bring him back to Atlanta.

Mrs. Bank stated Thursday, upon her brother's arrival here, that she hoped she would be able to place Gordon in the Veterans' Bureau hospital, No. 48, where he will receive the care due him.

"Page Diogenes" cried John M. Vandiver, state commissioner of revenue, Thursday when he received the tax report of a firm in Mitchell county listing itself as doing business in 10 lines subject to a special occupational tax.

In addition to the special tax, the firm paid a tax as a corporation; was subject to ad valorem taxes and school taxes, and individual members of the company paid into the state treasury poll taxes and state automobile licenses, Mr. Vandiver pointed out.

Colonel John T. Boileau will be the principal speaker at a dinner-dance of the American Business club in the Peacock cafe at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Officers of the club recently elected headed by H. E. Stein-grebe, president, will be installed.

Other officers to be installed are: J. Henson Tatum, first vice president; H. C. Hubbard, second vice president; E. O. Johnson, secretary; S. H. Benedict, treasurer; E. E. ## THE AIR MAIL PROBLEM.

Mayor Sims has appointed a delegation of 30 Atlantans to attend a conference with delegations from Macon, Savannah, Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, and intermediate points, at Savannah May 6—the same to take definite and cooperative steps toward securing an air mail service between New York and Washington, and the cities of the southeast.

This conference should be largely attended, and all the citizens of Georgia ought to work in harmony, as any division of interests may result in tying up indefinitely all prospects for air mail to this section of the country.

With proper cooperation, and all of the members of the state delegation in congress a unit, there is little doubt that such a service will be authorized and by next fall, provided the cities along the route at which it is desirable that landings should be made, will procure and prepare, according to regulations, fields for landing. Atlanta is rapidly progressing on this matter, Candler field recently acquired, being in the process of preparation from two $5,000 appropriations made by council and the Fulton commissioners, respectively.

If Savannah and Atlanta will work in harmony—and they very probably will—any route established to Atlanta and thence to Florida will undoubtedly swing through Savannah and hence to Jacksonville. This would enable the route to follow the Piedmont ridge through Virginia and the Carolinas, touching Richmond, a federal reserve center, and Columbia, a federal farm-loan center. The advantages of air mail touching Washington for the federal banking systems is obvious.

It must be understood that under the recent order of the postmaster general these air mail routes are not established at government expense above revenue. The service must be conducted by private bonded interests, and the government pays to such interests for transporting the mail the fixed air mail charges over and above the charges that would be imposed for the same through the regular surface conveyances. That is to say, a regulation letter demanding a 2 cent postage would be 10-cent postage by air, and the air transporting agency receives the 8-cent surplus. Such airships, however, are permitted to carry passengers and other freight and express, just as are mail-carrying trains.

There will be little trouble probably in organizing the carrying service if the cities of Georgia and the other southeastern states will combine on a route without friction.

FOR MALARIA CONTROL.

Dr. Abercrombie, secretary of the state board of health, announces the organization of the Georgia Malaria Control congress.

This organization is to help in every way possible to stamp out malaria—which is easily preventable—and to educate the people of the mosquito-infested sections to the necessity for screening, drainage and otherwise protecting themselves from the malaria germs.

In this connection it is announced by the state board secretary that two federal experts will be assigned to Georgia to help carry on the campaign against malaria and other preventable diseases. The state board's specific program is planned on a more extensive and intensive scale than ever before.

gainful occupations. The losses through expenses amounts to an enormous sum. The mental anguish from deaths, of course, cannot be figured from a financial viewpoint. And any of the diseases in question are entirely unnecessary. Two much encouragement cannot be given to this work.

SOVIET "RIGHTEOUSNESS."

The soviet government of Russia is circulating in America, and perhaps in all the countries, studied propaganda to the effect that sovietism is divorcing itself from communism, accepting the ideals of a true democracy, eliminating terrorism, oppression, violence and all of the other elements that naturally resulted from revolution, and so on.

All of which, in the language of the street, "is to laugh."

Why did not the Moscow government permit a free election by which the people of Russia may unrestrainedly accept or reject communism and sovietism? If it is accepting the tenets of democracy, why not recognize that particular fundamental of democracy that guarantees the right of citizenship to the individual, as expressed at the ballot box. There can be no democracy where there is a government of dictatorship instead of a representative government.

Wholesale executions, for trivial offenses, have been discontinued in Russia because the civilization of the world revolted to such an extent that even the bolshevik leaders became apprehensive of the consequences. But only the other day Herbert Hoover, administrator of the American relief, declared that scores of innocent people were then in prison in Russia, by order of the soviet regime, "for no other purpose than association with American relief workers," or for holding a secret affection for freedom and democracy.

British men of affairs have recently reported that friends of theirs in Russia had been exiled, imprisoned or summarily "disposed of" for no other offense than that of communicating with them upon their visits to Russia.

The red internationalism continues as destructive an agency as ever. Its ways are as dark and as sordid as ever. It makes no reports. It makes no accounts of expenses. Its agents are everywhere—many of them in America.

There is no doubt of the recent intrigues of these agents in Bulgaria, as elsewhere in the Balkans. Much of the grave situation, the distress and bloodshed and human inquisitions in those unhappy states, has very probably been precipitated by soviet designs. It has been denied at Moscow, but there is much evidence to sustain the charge.

This Balkan situation is very probably the cause of the present spurt of righteousness that is being systematically fed to the rest of the world by soviet publicists.

There will be another attempt—led by Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee—to have this government recognize the soviet government. It will probably come early in the session which convenes in December.

But the Russian soviets will never be recognized by this government. A Russian republic, built upon the true principles of a democracy, would not only be recognized, but enthusiastically helped by every civilized government on the globe.

The Russians are a stalwart, agricultural people, and deserve better. It is the duty of civilization to see that they get a better government.

The Good Time Place is where you're at. An' livin' right along. When joy comes by, just hide his hat. An' ask him for a song.

It'd come to stay just any day. If folks would meet him on the way. And tell him: "Walk right in!" I tell you, it is just like that. When things seem runnin' wrong. When joy comes by, just hide his hat. An' ask him for a song!

Blames it on the Bankers. The Play Advocate explains a recent error in this complimentary way: "Because he signs his name like a banker, and not like other folks. Tunnish and his name omitted from the list of signers of the law enforcement resolution adopted at the recent mass meeting, and published in last week's Advocate. The Advocate force puzzled over the signature for some time, and finally printed it as 'Thompson.' However, it was Mr. Cunningham's signature, and everybody knows where he stands on law enforcement."

This time may come in so wrapped in furry robes that the shivering roses will hardly recognize her. Record of a Handy Home Man. (As the Glen Elder Sentinel tells it.) Charles Rarick had his washing on the line by 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. He took his breakfast over, morning work done and started to work at the store by 7 o'clock. Fact of the matter is, Charles is always at work by 7 o'clock. You can set your watch by him.

Motto of the Adams Enterprise: "Keep the saw in the log, but—keep it singing." Satisfactory to Me. Sometimes things are going. Contrary as can be. But this old world is somehow Satisfactory to me. With its birds a-singin'. Or blizzards blowin' free. Any way it's goin' Satisfactory to me.

Trouble Ahead! The Chase Tribune figures it that: "There are going to be a lot of embarrassed deacons at the pulpit gates. If St. Peter, instead of asking how often they attended church or how many long prayers they made, starts to inquire about the kind of tax reports they made, and our guess is he's liable to do that very thing."

Way to View It. "Times are better every day. Than we say: Lots more chance for makin' hay: Lots more blessing on the way: Hallelujah and hooray. Every day!"

And the comment of the Adams Enterprise is: "Well, that beats the growlin' way."

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR THE LOVE OF THE THING. One day I was attracted by a bird store along the street going to my office. Moving birds I walked in and listened for a half hour to their chirps and songs. It seemed too good that so many beautiful bits of life should be so housed. But, I watched, my affection grew and as I had been watching a little fellow over in a cage in the corner, I finally asked the price and took him home. Now every morning this little conger fish the silent halls of my home with song that is more golden than its golden throat.

I stand before its little home and listen to its warbles so sweet and so filled with its tiny soul, and say that it could sing for no other reason in the world than that it loves to. If we do not do our work each day for the very love of the work we do, we had better not do it at all. And even when the cloudy days come around and when it rains, shutting out the sun that does so much to lighten the heart, to go right on doing the thing, is something even finer than being a hero.

Just in Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOWAY

When one thinks of the Concomitant Order of Hoo-Hoo he instinctively thinks of lumbermen and those of allied industries. It is one of the liveliest and most progressive of the fraternal orders, and one of the most worthy. It stands for peace, fellowship, honor—the outstanding ideals of correct living and correct business methods.

The Atlanta Hoo-Hoo is composed of some of the finest business men in this city. It is alert, and always doing something of a fraternal nature to bring its members closer together, and to promote some worthy undertaking.

Naturally enough the Hoo-Hoo is deeply interested in forestry. That it should have held a public meeting Wednesday evening to promote deeper thought along lines of reforestation, conservation, and wise forestry legislation, was fitting. Many friends of the forests attended, and C. B. Harman, an excellent presiding officer, a high official in the order, and one of the most zealous forestry workers in the state, wielded the gavel with characteristic enthusiasm and appeal.

His remarks between speeches were snappy and thoughtful, always emphasizing the necessity for more organized attention to forestry in Georgia. Among the speakers were Dr. Brittain, Jim Nevin, J. R. Smith, John T. Boileau, Miss Alice Baxter and others. Trees were discussed from every angle—economic and esthetic.

It was a good meeting, and I congratulate the Atlanta Hoo-Hoo for the vigorous interest it is taking in this most important economic question. It is especially important to Georgia.

When I think of the Hoo-Hoo I also think of the Southern Pine association—and right here I'm getting away from forestry for the remainder of the chapter. Instead I will discuss the innovation of grade-marked and trade-marked lumber, which was officially instituted by this association on April 1.

We've heard of trade-marked everything sold from the stores almost, but trade-marked lumber is a new one. Mills of the Southern Pine association produce about five billion board feet of the lumber and timber annually that is consumed principally in the territory east of the Rocky mountains. Much of the construction wood used in this and neighboring communities consists of southern pine.

Under the grade-marking plan just put into operation by the association subscribers, on the end of each piece of lumber or timber produced by these mills there is plainly marked a number within a circle, which identifies the mill producing the lumber; also the letters "S.P.A." as the official symbol of the association, and the grade of the piece, for example: "B & BTR" for B and Better, or "No. 1 COM" for No. 1 common, or whatever the grade may be.

This form of grade-marking and trade-marking is considered equivalent to certifying and guaranteeing the quality of the product, because the grade brand is backed up by the association's official mill inspection service, which is the authoritative agency for maintaining the uniformity and integrity of the standard specifications for grades of southern yellow pine, which are universally recognized.

The circle and the association symbol, "S.P.A." have been copyrighted and only association subscriber mills can lawfully use this form of grade-marking, since only the subscriber mills are the association's regular inspection service, through which it is enabled to guarantee the grades of the producing mills. These features of the branding are considered as of much importance.

What was the Oregon plan? A modification of the cabinet system proposed by the People's Power League of Oregon. It provided for a single-chambered legislature, for the appointment of all executive officers by the governor, for the seating of these officers on the floor of the legislature, and for the initiation of all financial legislation by them. The plan was defeated at the polls.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

CLAVUS. The title of today's talk I chose not so much to aid and abet crossword puzzle makers, but from impulse. The word clavus means a corn or callus, and a doctor just naturally seizes upon a name like that to cover his general ignorance of the subject as much as possible. Clavus, by the way, is one disease which the former barber healers seldom treat by adjusting the victim's spine. Clavus in the shrewd eyes of the former barber healers looks very much as fracture looked to the author of another bad healing cult—the lally is still rather hard-headed about it, but he is already under way.

Before we go any further I want to testify that I spelled clavus as a noun in the preceding paragraph, no matter how it may be spelled here, as a general rule, it comes out spelled as an adjective.

All corns are caused by pressure. Paving or cutting or grinding away. When the pressure is made by an action, the corn is likely to be a soft corn, simply because the sweat between the toes keeps it moist.

For the soft corn the same treatment is sufficient, but special attention is necessary to prevent moisture. This may be done by keeping either plasters of absorbent cotton or little folds of absorbent cotton's gauze between the toes and changing them every three or four days. If there is excessive sweating of the feet, that should be treated, too.

The present styles in shoes are about the best ever from the hygienic point of view. Women's shoes this season allow for three or four toes to the foot, and some of the shoes for men will take five toes together and still leave room for half shoe.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Tonsils and Voice. Please tell me whether having the tonsils removed will injure the voice for singing. I have been told there is a lining back of the palate called the pillars of the throat and if these are destroyed one can never sing high. Is there more danger of injury to the pillars if a local anesthetic is used, or is the result more satisfactory when a general anesthetic is used? (Mrs. H. J. N.)

Answer—If the tonsils are removed, or if there are adhesions between the tonsil and the pillar (the result of old inflammation or long neglected infection) there is some risk of injury to the regular in the removal of the tonsils, whether local or general anesthesia is used. As a general rule removal of the tonsils improves the voice.

Boxing. Is boxing good for a girl? Will it be injurious to her system, or will it be a good thing for her to do? (C. J. C.)

Answer—I should not advise it for girls. Better go for swimming, fencing, or the dancing girls' basketball, hiking, tennis, skating or gymnasium class work. Every schoolboy, however, should be required to pass a proficiency test in boxing.

Orange, Lemon, Grapefruit. Is there any objection to drinking a cupful of orange juice every morning? Does it help to reduce weight? Is it a breakfast for me, as I do not eat anything else with it. (F. M.)

Answer—No objection if you like it. Of course, no food helps to reduce weight. Orange juice, lemon juice, grapefruit, lime or tangerine is food. All of these citrus foods contain citric acid, with more or less fruit sugar. Citric acid gives the tart taste to the citrus fruits. Citric acid is oxidized into carbonic acid in the blood and the carbonic acid combines with alkalis such as sodium and potassium to form alkaline carbonates. Therefore, all of the citrus fruits or their juices tend to diminish any tendency toward acidosis or "acid in the system." All this tend to render the system alkaline. ## Thomas Jefferson and the World of Today

BY EDWIN A. ALDERMAN, President of the University of Virginia.

(The interest in Thomas Jefferson increases as the plans for celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of his death begin to materialize. A campaign to make his home at Monticello a national shrine is already under way. His centennial coincides with the sesquicentennial of the signing of the declaration of independence.)

We are beginning to prepare for our sesquicentennials. The foremost of these is the one hundredth and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the declaration of independence, and the most appealing and important of the political documents of modern history.

An odd and interesting coincidence, this event synchronizes with the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the great paper.

In the degree in which personality excites and moves men more than institutions or theories, the thought of mankind will be centered upon Jefferson, and there will issue new appraisals of that remarkable man free from personal passion and unclouded by prejudice. It will be revealed that he had his full quota of faults of temperament and emotional organization. He lacked the grand balance of George Washington, the loveliness and lucidity of John Marshall, and the penetrating directness and genius for order of Alexander Hamilton; but certain divine fires burned in his soul that did not burn so brightly in theirs, and this is why he has been and is and will continue to be the titanic saint of all parties of protest and individual liberty that have appeared or shall appear in our democratic story no matter what names they may take unto themselves.

When the Jeffersonian spirit is in danger, and men group together in blocs or parties to fight for principles, they will hark back to Thomas Jefferson. He was an aristocrat in his social tastes and his intellectual possessions.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN. The mannequins refuse to parade for us, it is said. If it happens to run into the arms of the Russian nobility, there are not only angry and haughty glances from both sides, but the noble ladies do not refrain from calling them "Krasnaya" and "Bela." They look at her diamonds and then they ask with withering scorn: "From whom did your husband steal those?"

THE PEASANT SPOKE. With the exception of colossal demonstrations in the Red Square of Moscow, May Day will pass in all quietness in the rest of the world. There will be the usual speeches and parades and there, a parade of singing workers in Amsterdam, Vienna, New York and Berlin, but no one expects anything like a dawn of world revolution. Krasnaya, a true communist, does not feel alarmed despite the fact that the French communists made the most noise of any of their comrades. In France, the red dragons will ride up and down the boulevards in Paris, but the sight of the military is nothing strange in France and will excite curiosity. The last time the government actually feared communist excesses was in 1919. Bolshevism was then at its high tide and the authorities in Berlin and Paris feared that it might break through the cordon of border states and engulf the whole continent. This writer, walking along the Quai d'Orfere, a road by the river, saw a busy erecting barbed wire entanglements on the morning of May 1 of that year to proceed along a back street. "But what is this for?" we asked. "The government has got to be safe. Here it's May and my father needs me out there in the vineyard and we've got to keep putting at this time of the year. A revolution, a turnover, the soil needs turning over, that's all," said one of the police and his officers and comrades laughed at the remark. (Copyright, 1925, for The Constitution.)

THE HOLLINS COLLEGE FIRE. (From the Richmond, Va. Times-Dispatch.) That part of Virginia which is interested in education and which has a justifiable pride in the state's higher institutions of learning feels, with Hollins college, a keen sense of loss in the destruction, through fire Tuesday night, of its splendidly equipped science hall. To an institution which is constantly attempting to raise the standard of learning, it is always making an effort to improve, and even ahead-of-progress in collegiate work for women, such a loss assumes almost the proportions of a catastrophe.

But to an institution with the history of Hollins college, such a loss can mean only a challenge for the immediate building of a better and more perfectly equipped science hall. One of the oldest, and perhaps the oldest, institutions of learning for women in the south, Hollins has always met unflinchingly and conquered the many obstacles which have lain in her way. Founded in 1842 as a seminary for girls and boys, it has dared, through the courage and vision of its founder, Charles Lewis Cooke, to defy the public opinion of the early days, to accept the challenge of higher education for women, and has become an institution only for women. Financial losses came at first, but through the sacrifices of a family devoted to the interests of education, and to the cause of higher education for women in Virginia, success came finally, and in the early part of a century, Hollins has incorporated, under the laws of Virginia, as a college.

When the need for a library arose the alumnae rallied and the Charles Lewis Cooke Memorial Library. Within the past 18 months the effort of the student body and alumnae has resulted in the building of a new library, which is the best equipped, theater south of the Mason and Dixon line, and the magnificent new gymnasium.

Set in although the estimated loss of $100,000 on the comparatively new science hall is a drastic loss it is not one which Hollins will ever regret. It is a loss which, through the efforts of its students and alumnae, will be made good. When Madame Krassin goes shopping, she will find that the loss of the science hall is a loss which will be made good.

2 BROTHERS HELD IN THEFT PROBE

Merrell Bourne, 18, and Marcus Kohn, 27, half-brothers, arrested Wednesday afternoon on suspicion of being the dapper bandits who for the past three weeks have robbed and terrorized filling stations and drug stores in all sections of the city.

Thursday afternoon were bound over to Fulton grand jury under $500 bonds by Recorder A. W. Calloway, following a hearing in which they were charged with the attempted theft of a number of electric fans from the local veterans' bureau.

After hearing arguments, the recorder overruled a motion of Audrey M. Lane, attorney for the young men, that they be turned over for prosecution of charges of theft from the government, and sent the case to the state courts.

Both youths protested their innocence of the charge that they were attempting to steal the electric fans, and Attorney Lane announced after the hearing that he would ask Clint W. Hager, district attorney, to take the case over as a government case.

Kohn Is Veteran.

Witnesses at the trial testified that Kohn is drawing $100 a month from the United States government for disabilities received while in service in France during the world war.

While police continued grilling the two men, several victims of the two dapper bandits who have been operating here recently have visited their cell and have failed to identify Bourne and Kohn as the men who robbed them. This fact has tended to show that Bourne and Kohn are not the bold, youngsters who have been terrorizing filling stations and drug stores in their sudden raids.

E. S. Logan, carpenter, who is said to have sounded the alarm when he thought the men were removing the electric fans from the veterans' bureau office, was in court. Wallace Dean, employee of the bureau, verified the fact that Kohn is on the government disability list.

Mrs. Kohn, mother of the accused man, was in court and stated that the boys told her they were going to clean the fans and that they had no intention of taking them.

Hoot Bandit Charge.

Bourne earlier in the day hooted at the inference that they were the "dapper bandits" sought by police. He asked if it were reasonable that the robbers who have cleaned a fortune in a series of bold "hoots" would stoop to steal such insignificant things as electric fans.

The Fulton county grand jury meets today and the case probably will be brought immediately to its attention in an effort to get quick action.

10 COMMUNIST MEETINGS BROKEN UP IN NEW YORK

They were distributing pamphlets to pupils at a Brooklyn high school. The pamphlets called attention to May day and were headed in large type "The International Demonstration Against Capitalism."

The pamphlets bore the address of the "Young Workers League of America," District No. 2, 108 East 14th street, police said.

The youths were locked up charged with violating a city ordinance against littering the streets with circulars.

May day promises to be quietly celebrated here tomorrow, labor leaders said tonight in outlining their plans for the day. Nevertheless, the police have taken their customary precautions.

Although the police do not expect any demonstrations, guards have been assigned to watch the federal reserve and other banks, the stock exchange, St. Patrick's cathedral and various churches, the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. and the homes of wealthy persons.

New Clues Found To Solve Identity Of Slain Woman

Gary, Ind., April 30.—Belief that the charred and mutilated body of a young girl found near Chesterton, Ind., last Sunday may be her daughter was expressed to police tonight by Mrs. Bernard Janero, an Italian, who recognized a vanity case found near the body.

Coincidentally, Tex McLean, a Chicago sign painter, was taken into custody for questioning because of his actions while viewing the body at the Chesterton morgue.

In a rambling conversation on his trip to Gary, McLean gave information which led officials to think he may have knowledge of the slaying.

Daughter Had Disappeared.

Through a telephone number found in the vanity case, the police were led to Chicago and to the home of Mrs. Janero, where they learned that her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Desidoro, 21, and the mother of three children, had been parted from her husband for the past three months and disappeared after working for a time in a restaurant.

Mrs. Janero identified the vanity case as belonging to her daughter and then was taken to Chesterton by the Gary police along with Gus Pyrgous, proprietor of a hotel. While they were not positive, both stated there was a likeness to the woman's daughter.

Became Very Nervous.

McLean, when taken into custody, said he came to Gary from Chicago and had gone to view the body at Chesterton. He became very nervous when he saw the body and his continued queer actions attracted attention.

He gave as his reason for viewing the body that he thought he might have a clue. He asked detectives why they thought three men had slain the girl when one could have committed the crime.

The body of a man, apparently slain, was found tonight on the road near the place where the girl's body was discovered last Sunday. While there was no indication that there was a connection between the two slayings, except that the bodies were found in the same vicinity, the police at once started working on the theory that the killings may have been the work of one person who killed to avenge a wrong. The man apparently had been dead for five or six days.

URGE VACCINATION OF U. S. EMPLOYEES

Washington, April 30.—In an effort to prevent the spread of smallpox which has resulted in 19 deaths in the capital since January 1, the public health service today urged all government employees here to submit to vaccination.

Physicians were assigned to the various departments to inoculate officials and clerks with vaccine without charge. At the veterans' bureau, which shelters the largest single unit of government workers, more than 2,300 had been vaccinated tonight.

It was also understood that President Coolidge had been vaccinated, although confirmation was lacking at the white house. Coming in direct contact as he does daily with hundreds of visitors with whom he shakes hands, the president was advised by friends to take the precaution of vaccination, but his physicians and secretaries declined to confirm or deny whether he had done so.

Public health service officials admitted were concerned, although not alarmed, over the situation here and in a number of other cities. Reports indicate that the disease is of a virulent type, resulting in a greater percentage of deaths than is usually the case.

Surgeon General Cumming, advocating vaccination in a formal statement, declared that "a recent successful vaccination is absolute protection against smallpox; a vaccination performed five or ten years ago may protect or it may not."

Official reports received by the public health service, covering 38 states, show that during the week ended April 18, sixty new cases developed in Birmingham, Ala.; 25 in Omaha, Neb.; 24 in Los Angeles; 20 in Memphis and Seattle; 11 in Philadelphia; 11 in St. Louis; 7 in Houston, Texas and 6 here. During the week Camden, N. J., reported four deaths; Philadelphia and Washington three each, and Chicago, Birmingham and Buffalo, one each.

COLONEL COOLIDGE ENTERS HOSPITAL

Boston, April 30.—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, arrived in Boston tonight to undergo treatment for his heart at the Massachusetts general hospital.

"About as usual," Colonel Coolidge cheerfully responded to questions as to his condition. He was unwardly in assistance down the long platform to the train gate, where he posed for photographers.

The president's father has been in poor health all this spring, it is said, and it was on the advice of his doctor and of President Coolidge that he decided to undergo treatment in Boston. He left his home in Plymouth, Vt., this afternoon after discharging his customary morning chores.

Colonel Coolidge, it was learned, is suffering from a slow pulse. According to the physician, the patient's pulse registers between 30 and 40 beats a minute while the normal is about 70.

Despite this, the president's father takes his condition lightly and told a reporter that "the papers knew of my illness before I did."

That he came to Boston for the examination, principally to please the president, who, the colonel explained, learned of his father's illness before he himself was aware of it, because "he gets his morning papers before I do."

VON HINDENBURG TO OPPOSE POMP

Schiele, the nationalist party's representative in the Luther cabinet.

Marx Sends Congratulations.

In addition to dispatching a personal message of congratulation to Von Hindenburg, Dr. Marx, defeated republican bloc candidate in the presidential election, indicated a long communication to the voters who supported him. In his communication to his successful rival for office, Dr. Marx said that every one who believed in the spirit of true democracy should accept the verdict of the constitutional majority of the people.

In his message to the voters, after expressing thanks for the support given to him, the former chancellor blames the communists for his defeat and observes that Von Hindenburg was not elected by an absolute majority.

Accepts Verdict of Majority.

"As the people's bloc is dedicated to the service of the fatherland and such devotion must transcend all other considerations," he continued, "we accept the verdict of the majority of the German people in true democratic spirit. As defenders of the constitution, it is our sacred duty to respect and honor our president, the constitutional representative of the German people and the German republic."

He admonishes the voters who supported him not to lapse into the error committed by their opponents, who, he charges, persistently vilified Von Hindenburg's predecessor in office, thereby gravely undermining the state's authority. Dr. Marx concludes his message with an appeal to his following to keep alive the flame of democracy as an unqualified confession of allegiance to the German republic, the first requisite for its authority and endurance.

HIT BY CONDUCTOR, SAYS PASSENGER; SUES FOR $15,000

A. P. Woodward, 109 Greenwich avenue, Thursday filed suit for $15,000 against the Georgia Railway and Power company for an alleged attack made on him by Arthur Brownlee, a conductor.

He alleges that on April 17 he was a passenger on a Highland avenue street car, and asked Brownlee for a transfer. The conductor told him to stand aside until other passengers boarded the car, according to the petition, and when he asked for the transfer again, it was refused.

In an argument over the transfer, Howard claims, Brownlee attacked him and struck him on the nose, seriously injuring him.

The suit was filed by the law firm of Savage and Crawford.

SLAYING OF DRUGGIST LAID TO HIGHWAYMEN

Memphis, Tenn., April 30.—J. P. Shrodt, 29, a druggist, was shot to death in his store here late tonight, presumably, police say, by highwaymen.

Shrodt was preparing to close his drug store for the night when a single shot was heard by a passerby. There were no witnesses to the shooting. Shrodt died without making a statement.

FRANK BURR DIES; LAST RITES TODAY

Frank W. Burr, 46, of 162 Peachtree circle, prominent citizen of Atlanta, died Thursday night at his residence after a short illness. He is survived by his widow, one sister, Miss Harriet Burr, of Pulaski, N. Y., and one brother, Harry Burr, also of Pulaski, N. Y.

Mr. Burr was a Mason, a member of the Shrine Chanters, A. A. O. N. M. S., Palestine lodge, No. 486. He was first reader in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of this city.

Mr. Burr was a resident of Atlanta for 22 years, during which time he had been actively associated in the insurance business serving as general agent of the Equitable Insurance company for the past 10 years. He also was general agent for Georgia for the State Life Assurance Company of Massachusetts, and a member of the Insurance Managers' association.

Funeral services will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of H. M. Patterson and Son. The body will be taken to Pulaski, N. Y., Saturday morning.

Panama show shoes are to be worn this summer at the fashionable resorts in England by men as well as women.

U. S. B. PLAYS LANIER HIGH TODAY

University's Bluebirds make their first local appearance against a prep club, since the opening week of the season this afternoon when Coach Phillips' former prep champs take on Lanier High, of Macon, at Almand park in the first game of a two-game series.

The Tech High-Decatur game, the only battle scheduled in the prep league, has been postponed until next Wednesday on account of the prep track meet.

Lanier and University have been rivals and respected foemen for several years now, and the meeting of the two on the Atlanta diamond this afternoon will be a good scrap. Lanier won a single game played at the first of the season in Macon, and should the Poets win the opener of the two-game series this afternoon Lanier will hold undisputed diamond supremacy over the Bluebirds, even should University even the present series in Saturday's game.

BRADLEY HEADS HORSE ASSN.

Lexington, Ky., April 30.—Edward R. Bradley, master of Idle Hour farm and nationally-known sportsman, was unanimously elected president of the Thoroughbred Horse association for the third consecutive term yesterday when members of the organization gathered here for their annual business meeting.

The election of Mr. Bradley for the third time as president is without precedent in the organization.

Bradley will probably get the mound assignment for the Bluebirds this afternoon, with Sparks, all-prep catcher, receiving.

Since the Bluebirds have not performed on home lots in many moons, a glimpse at their line-up would not be out of order. Hope Freeman is on first; Dickey Butler on second; Medlin is playing the short field; Hornsby, another all-prep man, is holding down third, and Malsby, Jacobson, a third all-prep player, and Hanna are taking care of the outfield positions. In case Green proves ineffective, McHenry will twirl for the Atlanta nine, and should Sparks get hurt the veteran Frank Speer will go in behind the bat.

Richard the Lion-Hearted, during the crusades in 1190, ruled that no person in the army beneath the degree of knight could play any sort of game for money.

N. C. TRACK SQUAD STRONG

Chapel Hill, April 30.—"The University of North Carolina seems to have the best-balanced track and field squad in the south and bids fair to win the southern conference championship meet at Sewanee in May," says H. C. Byrd, director of athletics at the University of Maryland, in an article which has just appeared in the Evening Star, of Washington, D. C.

Brilliant performances in many events and good work in others have been accomplished by the Tar Heels in all their dual meets, in none of which they have been even closely approached in the point scoring," the article continues.

"North Carolina's success in track and field, its present team being the result of a gradual development over the last three years, is the result of concentrated and intelligent work by Bob Felzer, athletic director. Felzer took charge of track athletics when that branch of sport was practically nothing at Chapel Hill, and today it is likely that his team can whip any other school in the south in a dual meet."

"The Carolina squad comes up here May 9 for a triangular meet with Navy and Maryland at Annapolis and is almost certain to win. The week following that it will enter its full season in the southern conference championship a favorite to take title honors."

Agnes Scott Seniors Will Present Comic Opera May 2

The senior class at Agnes Scott will present a comic opera entitled "Tan Trousers" on Saturday evening, May 2, at 8:30 o'clock, in the chapel.

"Tan Trousers" is a Spanish tragedy in three acts with appropriate ballets, choruses and orchestral renditions. The opening act is laid in Castoria, a town somewhere in Spain, and the first setting is, of course, in a palace. The hero and heroine are very cruelly parted by the heroine's father—the deep dramatic significance of which leads to the future development of their love in the next act, a cabaret scene, where an elaborate tango is danced. Here the details of the drinking house of Tales of Hoffmann will be closely followed as well as the famous Barcarolle from the same opera. The third act is laid in the arena, where there is a bloody "scene" ending in the direct of tragedies.

Those taking leading roles in the opera will be Misses Ellen Walker, Georgia May Little, Frances Bitzer, Eunice Kell, Margaret Hyatt, Frances Lincoln, Martha Lin Manly and Emily Spivey. The chorus is composed of Misses Isabel Ferguson, Mildred Pinner, Genie Perkins, Josephine Douglas, Jacqueline Holston, Mildred Mattox, Gertrude Henry and Ruth Harrison.

The admission will be 50 cents for the arena and 35 cents for the dress circle seats.

Musical Program At College Park.

Songs, tableaux, dances and choruses will depict scenes representing 10 periods of development in America, beginning with the landing of the Pilgrims and ending with an exquisite interpretative dance given by Miss Sara Sharp, one of the most talented dancers in Atlanta. The entire cast is local talent with the exception of Miss Sharp and several little dancers from the Spiker school, who will dance the minuet in a very effective scene.

Everyone in this vicinity is urged to come and help make this entertainment a complete success.

Those not holding season tickets may secure tickets at Ratemans' Pharmacy or at the door. Tickets are 25 and 50 cents.

On Thursday, May 14, at 1 o'clock, at the Atlanta Woman's club, an elaborate luncheon has been arranged for the convention visitors and delegates.

An outstanding feature of the program of entertainment and of especial social interest is the banquet to be given in the grill room of the Biltmore hotel on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The dining room of the Biltmore will be used at the same hour for the banquet to be given by the Fulton County Medical society in honor of the doctors who will attend the seventy-sixth annual Medical Association of Georgia which convenes here simultaneously with the state auxiliary convention.

The woman's auxiliary has invited Mrs. Potter-Spiker, head of the Potter-Spiker School of Interpretive Dancing and Dramatic Art, to arrange a program for the banquet. COLOR CUT-OUTS
Hansel and Gretel

The Plan Works.
This is one day's chapter of the story of "Hansel and Gretel." Children who save the paper dolls every day can act out the whole story with the dolls.

As darkness fell all sorts of dreadful noises arose in the forest. Birds flapped their wings and chattered shrilly in the trees over the children's heads. Wild beasts growled in the distance. Both children were frightened. Little Gretel began to cry.

"Do not cry," Hansel comforted his little sister. "Wait until the moon rises and then we can easily find our way home."

When the moon came up the children followed the path marked by the little white stones. They walked the whole night through and arrived home just as break of day.

(Here are the coat and hat that Hansel wore into the forest. Color the coat green, and make the feather on his hat green, too. The hat itself and the leggings should be brown.)

Foreword from Mr. Burbank

This series of articles has been prepared by Mrs. Urquhart by my aid and permission for the benefit of all who may not know how to proceed in the delightful health giving pastime of home gardening, and to relieve me of thousands of letters to which I have no time for reply.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Before passing on to the planting of flowers, I asked Mr. Burbank about the famous hybrid elm tree at his home in Santa Rosa. He said:

"At my old home in New England, there grew a large and very beautiful weeping elm tree, the 'largest' for miles around, for which I always had great affection, and on one of my visits to Lancaster I cut some tips of the branches from the tree and took them to California."

"These branches were grafted on the roots of a seedling of the common American elm, at the surface of the ground."

"They grew very rapidly and reproduced a tree, which when only 15 years old, measured two and a half feet in diameter. The tree appears to be growing on its own roots, but the connecting line where the two elms are united may be easily seen.

"As the old tree in Massachusetts has since been destroyed by a storm, this famous hybrid is doubly prized, for this giant was without a doubt a natural hybrid."

As Mr. Burbank described this wonderful tree, it seemed to be a fitting symbol of his life and work both in the east and the west, and to typify the union and harmony of the two.

So for the present the amateur and the master turned from the trees and shrubs to the garden itself and the flowers that were to beautify it.

It had already been decided to make a garden plan, and this had been done subject to suggestions and alterations. We did not go into the relation of the architecture of the house and the garden as it seemed best, for a typical garden, to select the kind known as English or natural rather than the Italian or formal. This style gives more opportunity for wide borders of perennials and friendly little groups of bulbs and annuals, that may come and go without interfering with any set plans.

Mrs. Burbank here made a suggestion: "If we are to have fruit trees later on, we may use them as part of the background of the garden, whether they are planted in rows that will give vistas or whether they form part of the shrubbery and boundaries of the garden."

As he spoke I recalled a neighboring garden, only a little larger than these dimensions, which was bounded by tall hedges of privet and holly, broken by laurel and bay trees and harboring a walnut tree, a peach, a plum tree, an apple and a pear tree. It was even a fascinating rock garden, and a little wild flower garden, and a little pool with a border of ferns and water plants."

"But after this flight of fancy I realized that to create such a garden we must start out with practical things, and that the first steps must be slow and thoughtfully taken."

"Was there room for vegetables in this garden?" asked Mr. Burbank with a quizzical smile.

"I know it sounds like a fairy tale," I said, "but there was an intensive garden patch, and flowers in borders and in beds and in lovely groups, and in tubs and jars—flowers everywhere. There was even a fascinating rock garden, and a little wild flower garden, and a little pool with a border of ferns and water plants."

"Was there room for vegetables in this garden?" asked Mr. Burbank with a quizzical smile.

"I know it sounds like a fairy tale," I said, "but there was an intensive garden patch, and flowers in borders and in beds and in lovely groups, and in tubs and jars—flowers everywhere. There was even a fascinating rock garden, and a little wild flower garden, and a little pool with a border of ferns and water plants."

"But after this flight of fancy I realized that to create such a garden we must start out with practical things, and that the first steps must be slow and thoughtfully taken."

AND
By Louise Dooly

SECRETARY HOOVER boosting Baby Health week? Now, by all that is incongruous, why?

Maybe you said that to yourself when you first read it in the paper. For you did read it in the paper, if you read papers at all, wherever you may live, or whatever paper is your stand-by.

Newspapers do carry gobs of crime. Yes. At the same time, they carry still more of welfare propaganda, like this same Baby Health week. Not in a style so sensational. No. Because the public does not respond so spontaneously in reading interest.

But May day, as Child Health day, has been staring out at all of us from the printed page for quite a while back, and it is going to stare still more compellingly for a while to come.

AND why does the secretary of commerce of the United States lead this baby propaganda? This 1 in 21 campaign?

Mainly, as you are destined to find out—and it might as well be now—because he is head of the American Child Health association.

This is the association which is going to inform everybody in the United States within reach of a newspaper during the next few days and weeks that too many infants—potentially valuable citizens of the United States, and positively incomparable treasures to the parents that brought them here—too many infants die as a direct result of ignorance.

This ignorance the American Child Health association purposes in large measure to eradicate as promptly as possible, by bringing together for a great educational drive, every agency which can be made useful in conveying direct to all the mothers in the land such expert advice and necessary information as may reduce infant mortality at least to the figures of the campaign slogan—1 in 21.

IS motherhood beautiful? It is—when it is.

What irreverence, you may say, even to hint that it is not universal! So!

But how about it when it is ignorant or accidental, inefficient or unwilling?

AND then there is "mother instinct." That was a superstition of the dark ages—up to, say, twenty years ago. Indeed, there are lots of people who have not yet emerged from its shadows.

"Mother instinct" was the thing that was supposed to enable a girl-wife, with no training whatsoever, to know just exactly how to care for her infant, a human being complex and wonderful.

BUT there is a new order. Some people are even advanced enough these days to believe that the spinster-expert in infant care is a safer hand with the baby than its own mother, if that mother has only the aforesaid instinct to guide her.

To go still further, there are iconoclasts so disrespectful to tradition that they can conceive of a vicarious motherhood which might be superior to the real thing.

That woman who may have missed natural motherhood, and who devotes herself to the mothering of the waif and the orphan—is her devotion less lovely a thing?

TO return to Secretary Hoover: As head of the American Child Health association, he is bringing to bear upon the better baby business the same sort of system which has put the department of commerce of the United States on the map.

He is one of those advanced minds we referred to who evidently believes in putting efficiency above sentiment, even in the bringing up of babies.

Not long ago the newspapers were full of the research work being done by the department of commerce to discover the sources of leakage and waste which were undermining profits in business; and then, the methods projected by the department to do away with duplication of effort, or lack of community cooperation, or lapsing of territory, or whatever had been found by the department experts to be responsible for business loss where there should be gain.

Now what should Secretary Hoover do but put a similar plan to work to raise up healthy babies; to lower the infant mortality, which is everywhere higher than it should be, no matter how low it is.

He has actually got the department stores all over the country so "hot" up over this business of saving babies that in many instances they are taking a leadership, with the medical societies, local or state health boards, Parent-Teacher associations, clubwomen, etc., to put on the main health programs signaling Baby Health week in their particular city.

Every department store is invited to cooperate.

Secretary Hoover, with his fine sense of directness, realized that the department store is a straight avenue to the prompt and personal reaching of the mother. There she is in the habit of meeting the greater part of the baby's material needs.

So every department store is invited to cooperate in the campaign.

In addition, one such organization in every city is especially designated by Secretary Hoover as the commercial agency in that city to conduct the formal celebration of Baby Health week.

This choice in each instance falls upon that store which is willing to undertake a baby health program, which shall be worthy, in scope and the personnel, of the magnitude and importance of the national baby-saving drive.

In the case of Atlanta, it is Rich's. We had a chance to peek in on Rich's plans before today—May day—Child Health day.

They have seen fit to introduce their program with Herbert Hoover's implied regret that a child may not select his own parents, and his remedy for this condition through—

The Child's Bill of Rights.

THE ideal to which we should strive, the child's bill reads, as drawn up by Mr. Hoover, "is that there should be no child in America that has not been born under proper conditions, that does not live in hygienic surroundings, that ever suffers from under-nutrition, that does not have prompt and efficient medical attention and inspection, that does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and good health."

"It is for the reiteration of this truth, for the celebration of it until it shall become a living fact, that we urge all people of good will to join in the celebration of May day and Child Health day."

THE Fulton County Medical society has considered the child health campaign so important that, in compliance with the association's request, Atlanta's child health program has been set for the week of May 11, in order to coincide with the meeting in Atlanta of the State Medical association.

ON Rich's program will be included every kind of stimulation of interest in the health of the child, from bathing the baby and proper sterilization of its milk bottles, to diet and exercise, preventive medicine and prenatal care.

The exposition of these matters will be done by leading physicians and specialists in each line, to cover the welfare of the child from the prenatal period to school age. Moreover—

It will all end in a blaze of glory—a Baby show.

IT'S tremendously practical—this Baby Health week project.

But if you've just got to have some sentiment mixed in, because it concerns babies and motherhood, it's efficient—

Will it not help to render motherhood, what it isn't always, but ought to be?

The most beautiful thing in the world?

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

THE PROPOSAL.

Jane found Ellis Haynes waiting for her when she came out of the office after Armstrong had fired them both.

She walked with dragging weariness and the cold hand of terror clutched at her heart because she faced the morrow jobless and with no money to support her mother and herself. To her surprise, she found Haynes smiling jauntily. He took her hand through his arm and they started to walk down the dark, deserted side street.

"I'm sorry you had to lose your job because of me," Jane was beginning, but he stopped her quickly.

"Don't give it a thought. I only hope I arrived in time to save you from annoyance. The dirty bouncer! Someone ought to break his neck, I'd do it, too, if—"

Jane interrupted him in alarm. "Oh, please—no more trouble on my account! I'm too wretchedly sorry it all happened. What will you do now?"

He shrugged lightly. "No need to worry. There are plenty of jobs if I want them, but a matter of fact, I don't. This working for a salary is all nonsense. I can make plenty of money otherwise."

Jane hoped he would tell her what was the source of his mysterious funds which so far exceeded his weekly salary, but he turned the subject by saying gently:

"You are not worrying, are you, little girl?"

"A little," she nodded. "You see, I don't know where to look for another job, and I need one so badly."

He stonned still in the middle of the sidewalk and took both her hands in his.

"Listen, Jane, why don't you marry me and let me look after you?"

Jane received his proposal with two distinct sensations—one was surprise because, after hearing the gossip of the girls in the office regarding Haynes' many affairs of the heart, she had never really believed that he contemplated marriage—the other was a distinct sense of disappointment, for, deep down in her heart, there lurked a youthful romantic idea of a first proposal.

She had always dreamed of a perfumed garden on a summer night, of dance music playing softly far away, of herself in a ball gown with a flower in her hair, of an ardent lover wooing her with beautiful words.

And here she was, for the first time having a man asking her to marry her, in matter-of-fact phrases on a dark, deserted side street, in the cold of a winter night with an arc light for a moon flickering palely at the end of the block.

She suppressed a sigh for her lost dream and said gently:

"You are very kind. You want to help me, but that's not my idea of marriage. If I ever do marry, I want more than that."

He gripped her hands tightly and leaned over her with an ardor that aroused a belated thrill.

"I'll give you everything," he said tensely. "Don't you know I have been crazy about you ever since I first saw you. I never wanted to marry, but I want you and I'll give my life to trying to make you happy. You deserve the best there is, you beauty!"

Before she could think to resist, he had swept her to his arms and crushed her lips with his.

her that she knew nothing of this man, of his antecedents, of his source of income.

But when she looked up into his eyes and saw passion there, heard his quickened breath and felt his involuntary movement towards her, some force against which she was powerless captured her senses.

She opened the door and with a little nod over her shoulder invited him to follow her.

CHARMING SURROUNDINGS.

This is the time of year when the adventurous souls want to go away to new surroundings they're in. By that I mean that the "call of spring," the "wanderlust" has reached an acute stage about the beginning of May. We want a change from the faces and objects we've been looking at all winter. But some of us can't get away, and some of us don't want to, and the result, at least in my case, is a passionate desire to do over the house I'm living in.

It's a harmless and inexpensive way of using up the restless energy that comes at this season, and I recommend it to all my readers. There is a great deal of satisfaction in finding out that the rooms you have been spending your days in are not suited to your temperament, and in doing them up so they are. If you have been gloomy and depressed all winter, for instance, mightn't it be due to the fact that you've been living in a room covered with red wall paper and with only one window? Red has a bad effect on the nerves, as any doctor or psychologist will tell you. Do the red room over in primrose yellow with white woodwork and see how much better you feel!

Make your home surroundings gay and attractive, remembering their effect not only on yourself but on your friends. Choose colors that set you off, remembering that your home is your background, and that when your friends think of you they must think of it also. Use yellow for north rooms, light colors for small rooms, not too much design in any room.

James K. G.—Continue with the astringent and cream treatments every week, and massage cream into the lines each day. Such lines are not serious at all at your age and after you build up your health again they will be gone even if you did nothing about them meantime. The drooping at the corners of the mouth come from sagging muscles, but it is accentuated when you become discouraged about it. This too, will disappear as you build up.

SOVIET GRANTS BRITISH GOLD MINE CONCESSION

Moscow, April 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Soviet government today made the largest concession it has ever granted in signing a 50-year contract with the British Lena Gold Fields corporation for the exploitation of the Lena gold fields of Siberia, which are estimated to contain more than $100,000,000 worth of gold. American banking interests will participate to the extent of 50 per cent in the investment.

The Lena mines, which now are operated by the Soviet government, will be taken over immediately by the British operating company, which exploited the fields before the Russian revolution. The concession covers mining operations over several million acres of the Lena river country in Siberia.

Mayonnaise—even a man can make it the first time!

Few things are easier to make than good mayonnaise. Wesson Oil and a fresh egg—beaten together and seasoned to taste—and you have a mayonnaise you'll be proud of!

Quickest results are obtained if the oil and egg are not too cold. The ordinary temperature of your kitchen is just right.

Break the egg in a bowl—

Add about a tablespoonful of Wesson Oil.

Beat vigorously with an egg beater or a fork—until the oil and egg are thoroughly mixed. How long will that take? Perhaps while you count fifty—not as fast as you can count but as fast as you can beat.

Add another tablespoonful of oil and beat again—vigorously. Two tablespoonfuls and beat again. Two or three more and beat again.

Your mayonnaise will begin to thicken a little.

Then add Wesson Oil four or five tablespoonfuls at a time, beating well after each addition—until your mayonnaise is as thick and stiff as you want it. The more oil you beat into it the thicker your mayonnaise will be—about two cupfuls is the usual amount. [Never add more than a quarter cupful of oil at any one time.]

After your mayonnaise is made, add seasoning. Mix a half-teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful each of sugar and mustard, a generous pinch each of paprika and red pepper—add a tablespoonful of lemon juice or vinegar and stir until the salt and sugar are dissolved—then pour into the mayonnaise and beat well.

With Wesson Oil Mayonnaise as a base, you can make many other delicious salad dressings in a very few minutes.

A convenient method used by many women who like to vary their salads each day is to make a pint of Wesson Oil Mayonnaise, cover it tightly in a fruit jar and put it in the refrigerator where it will keep and at the end of the week be as fresh and good as the day it was made. Then from day to day as a different kind of dressing is desired a portion of the plain Mayonnaise is mixed with the desired ingredients to make the fancier dressing. One day you can make Russian Dressing, the next Thousand Island, and so on throughout the week. There are many variations of Wesson Oil Mayonnaise. If you would like to have the recipes for some of these, write to the Wesson Oil People, Savannah, Georgia, asking for the booklet on salad dressings.

The Lost World

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

As I emerged from my unconscious-ness—which could not, I think, have lasted more than a few minutes—I was aware of a most dreadful and penetrating smell. Putting out my hand in the darkness I came upon something which felt like a huge lump of meat, while my other hand closed upon a large bone. Up above me there was a circle of starry sky, which showed me that I was lying at the bottom of a deep pit. Slowly I staggered to my feet and felt myself all over. I was stiff and sore from head to foot, but there was no limb which would not move, no joint which could not bend. As the circumstances of my fall came back into my confused brain, I looked up in terror, expecting to see that dreadful head silhouetted against the piling sky. There was no sign of the monster, however, nor could I hear any sound from above. I began to walk slowly round, therefore, feeling in every direction to find out what this strange place could be into which I had been so opportunely precipitated.

It was, as I have said, a pit, with sharply-sloping walls and a level bottom about 20 feet across. The bottom was littered with the bones of all kinds of flesh, most of which was in the last state of putridity. The atmosphere was poisonous and horrible. After tripping and stumbling over these lumps of decay, I came suddenly against something hard, and I found that an upright post was firmly fixed in the center of the floor. It was so high that I could not reach the top of it with my hand, and it appeared to be covered with grime.

Suddenly I remembered that I had a tin box of wax-vestas in my pocket. Striking one of them was able at last to form some opinion of the place into which I had fallen. There could be no question as to its nature. It was a trap—made by the hand of man. The post in the center, some nine feet long, was sharpened at the upper end, and was black with the stale blood of the creatures who had been amputated upon it. The remains scattered about were fragments of the victims, which had been cut away in order to clear the stake for the next who might blunder in. I remember that Challenger had declared that man could not exist upon the plateau, since with his feeble weapons he could not hold his own against the monsters who roamed over it. But now it was clear enough how it could be done. In their narrow-mouthed caves the natives, whoever they might be, had refuges into which the huge saurians could not penetrate, and with their developed brains they were capable of setting such traps, covered with branches, across the paths which marked the run of the animals. I would destroy them in spite of all their strength and activity. Man was always the master.

The sloping wall of the pit was not difficult for an active man to climb, but I hesitated long before I trusted myself within reach of the dreadful creature which had so nearly destroyed me. How did I know that he was not lurking in the nearest clump of bushes, waiting for my reappearance? I took heart, however, as I recalled a conversation between Challenger and Summerlee upon the habits of the great saurians. Both were agreed that the monsters were practically brainless, and that if they had disappeared from the rest of the world it was assuredly on account of their own stupidity, which made it impossible for them to adapt themselves to changing conditions.

To lie in wait for me now would mean that the creature had appreciated what had happened to me, and this in turn would argue some power of connecting cause and effect. Sure it was more likely that a brainless creature, acting solely by vague predatory instinct, would give up the chase when I disappeared, and, after a pause of astonishment, would wander away in search of some other prey? I clambered to the edge of the pit and looked over. The stars were fading, the sky was whitening, and the cold wind of morning blew pleasantly upon my face. I could see or hear nothing of my enemy. Slowly I climbed out and sat for a while upon the ground, ready to spring back into my refuge if any danger should appear. Then, reassured by the absolute stillness and by the growing light, I took my courage in both hands and stole back along the path which I had come. Some distance down I picked up my gun, and shortly afterwards struck the brook which was my guide. So with many a frightened backward glance, I made for home.

And suddenly there came something to remind me of my absent companions. In the clear, still morning air there sounded far away the sharp, hard note of a single rifle-shot. I started and listened, but there was nothing more. For a moment I was shocked at the thought that some sudden danger might have befallen them. But then a simpler and more natural explanation came to my mind. It was now broad daylight. No doubt my absence had been noticed. They had imagined that I was lost in the woods, and had fired this shot to guide me home. It is true that we had made a strict resolution against firing, but it seemed to them that I might be in danger they would not hesitate. It was for me now to hurry on as fast as possible, and so to reassure them. I was weary and spent, so my progress was not so fast as I wished; but at last I came into regions which I knew. There was the swamp of the pterodactyls upon my left; there in front of me was the glade of the iguanodons. Now I was in the last belt of trees which separated me from Fort Challenger. I raised my voice in a cheery shout to allay their fears. No answering greeting came back to me. My heart sank at that ominous stillness. I quickened my pace into a run. The zebra rose before me, even as I had left it, but the gate was open. I rushed in. In the cold, morning light it was a fearful sight which met my eyes. Our fellows were scattered in wild confusion over the ground; my comrades had disappeared, and close to the smouldering ashes of our fire the grass was stained crimson with a hideous pool of blood.

I was so stunned by this sudden shock that for a time I must have nearly lost my reason. I have a vague recollection, as one remembers a bad dream, of rushing about through the woods all around the empty camp, calling wildly for my companions. No answer came back from the silent shadows. The horrible thought that I might find myself abandoned all alone in that dreadful place, with no possible way of descending into the world below, that I might live and die in that nightmare country, drove me to desperation. I could have torn my hair and beaten my head in my despair. Only now did I realize how I had learned to lean upon my companions, upon the serene self-confidence of Challenger, and upon the masterful, haughty coolness of Lord John Roxton. Weak out then I was like a child in the dark, helpless and powerless. I did not know which way to turn or what I should do first.

After a period, during which I sat in bewilderment, I set myself to try and discover what sudden misfortune could have befallen my companions. The whole disordered appearance of the camp showed that there had been some sort of attack, and the rifle-shot no doubt marked the time when it had occurred. That there should have been only one shot showed that it had been all over in an instant. The rifles still lay upon the ground, and one of them—Lord John's—had the empty cartridge in the breach. The blankets of Challenger and of Summerlee beside the fire suggested that they had been asleep at the time. The cases of ammunition and of food were scattered about in a wild litter, together with out unfortunate cameras and plate-carriers, but none of them were missing. On the other hand, all the exposed provisions—and I remembered that there were a considerable quantity of them—were gone. They were animals, then, and not natives, who had made the inroad, for surely the latter would have left nothing behind.

But if animals, or some single terrible animal, then what had become of my comrades? A ferocious beast would surely have destroyed them and left their remains. It is true that there was that one hideous pool of blood, which told of violence. Such a monster as had pursued me during the night could have carried away a victim as easily as a cat would a mouse. In that case the others would have followed in pursuit. But then they would assuredly have taken their rifles with them. The more I tried to think it out with my confused and weary brain the less could I find any plausible explanation. I searched around in the forest, but could see no tracks which could help me to conclusion. Once I lost myself, and it was only by good luck, and after an hour of wandering, that I found the camp once more.

Suddenly a thought came to me and brought some little comfort to my heart. I was not absolutely alone in the world. Down at the bottom of the cliff, and within call of me, was waiting the faithful Zambo. I went to the edge of the plateau and looked over. Sure enough, he was squatting among his blankets, with his fire in his little camp. But to my amazement, a second man was seated in front of him. For an instant my heart leaped for joy, as I thought that one of my comrades had made his way safely down. But a second glance dispelled the hope. The rising sun showed red upon the man's skin. He was an Indian. I shouted loudly and waved my handkerchief. Presently Zambo looked up, waved his hand, and turned to ascend the pinnacle. In a short time he was standing close to me and listening with deep interest to the story which I told him.

"Devil got them for sure, Massa Malone," said he. "You got into the devil's country, sah, and he take you all to himself. You take advice, Massa Malone. Throw your gun over here, make fast to this stump, and so you have bridge."

"We have thought of that. There are no creeps here which could bear us."

"Send for ropes, Massa Malone."

"Who can I send, and where?"

"Send to Indian village. Indian down below; send him."

"Who is he?"

"One of our Indians. Other ones beat him and take away his pay. He come back to us. Ready now to take letter, bring rope—anything."

"To take a letter? Why not? Perhaps he might bring help; but in any case he would ensure that our lives were not spent for nothing, and that news of all that we had done would be sent to our friends—at home. I had two completed letters already waiting. I would spend the day in writing a third, which would bring my experiences absolutely up to date. The Indian could bear this back to the world. I ordered Zambo, therefore, to come again in the evening, and I spent my miserable and lonely day in recording my own adventure of the night before. I also drew up a note, to be given to any white merchant or captain of a steamboat whom the Indian could find, imploring them to see that ropes were sent to us, since our lives must depend upon it. These documents I threw to Zambo in the evening, and also my purse, which contained three English sovereigns. These were to be given to the Indian, and he was promised twice as much if he returned with the ropes.

So now you will understand, my dear Mr. McArdle, how this communication reaches you, and you will also know the truth, in case you never hear again from your unfortunate correspondent. Tonight I am too weary and too depressed to make my plans. Tomorrow I must think out some way by which I shall keep in touch with this camp, and search round for any traces of my unhappy friends.

CHAPTER XIII
"A Sight Which I Shall Never Forget."

Just as the sun was setting upon that melancholy night I saw the lonely figure of the Indian upon the vast plain beneath me, and I watched him, our one faint hope of salvation, until he disappeared in the rising mists of evening, which lay, roasting from the setting sun, between the far-off river and me.

It was quite dark when I at last turned back to our stricken camp, and my last vision as I went was the red gleam of Zambo's fire, the one point of light in the wide world below, as was his faithful presence in my own shadowed soul. And yet I felt happier than I had done since this crushing blow had fallen upon me, for it was good to think that the world should know what we had done, so that at the worst our names should not perish with our bodies, but should go down to posterity associated with the result of our labors.

"The Country Cousin."

(At the Lyric)
The contrast between the sincerity of the country and the empty bombast of the city is humorously set out in "The Country Cousin," the clever comedy by Booth Tarkington and Julian Street, at the Lyric theater this week. A clever country girl "shows up" the entire assemblage of city swells and much of the wit of the play is found in her indirect thrusts at this crowd.

Stars of the Future.

(At Loew's Grand.)
Pleased crowds are praising the excellent bill of vaudeville offered this week at Loew's Grand theater which is headed by "Stars of the Future," a big novelty singing and dancing act presented by six pretty girls.
Fun in the main prevails in the other four acts of this week's bill. Kendal, Byron and Slater appear in a humorous skit, "At the Studio." The Three Nitos present one of the funniest tumbling acts ever seen here, while "Shorty Carlton" entertains with some new songs and stories. Paul Burns and Walter Wade offer a novelty sketch entitled "Broadening."

Ricardo Cortez.

(At the Howard)
"The Spaniard," a Paramount picture directed by Rex Walsh and featuring Ricardo Cortez, Jeta Goudal and Noah Beery, has been pleasing the thousands of patrons of the Howard theater since its opening. The picture is a screen version of the immensely popular novel of the same name by Juanita Savage.
The story tells of a romantic love affair between a London society girl and a dashing Spanish bull-fighter. However, after they are married the girl finds that her bull-fighter husband is a member of one of the wealthiest families of the Spanish nobility.
The Howard Symphony Orchestra, Alex Keesee conducting, offers a very pleasing musical program.
Martinez and De Sevilla, Spanish dancers, and Alvin Elev, singer of popular ballads, are the stage attractions for this week.
The comedy is "Fas t and Furious."

"A Kiss in the Dark."

(At the Rialto)
"A Kiss in the Dark" has impressed patrons of the Rialto as one of the most delightful light comedies of sophisticated life in a long time. It is augmented by "Rough Time."

INCOME TAX RECEIPTS SHOW SHARP DECREASE

Washington, April 30.—Income tax receipts were $67,541,300.41 less in the first quarter of this year than in the same three months of 1924. It was shown today in the first official figures on quarterly receipts by which the revenue-producing power of the present tax law was compared with the former rates.
The comparative statement, made public tonight, shows total income taxes of $349,238,920.98 for January, February and March this year, against $586,780,190.39 for the same three months of last year.
Officials made no comment on the statistics, explaining that the total for the quarter this year had been about $8,000,000 above the estimate which they had made last summer as the basis for calculation of government requirements. They probably will not be able to offer an analysis of the results until after the June quarterly payment is in, when statistics will be available showing the number of persons who paid all their taxes in the first installment.
The comparative receipts from the various states for the two periods includes:

States	Jan. 1 to April 1, 1924	Jan. 1 to April 1, 1925
Alabama	$2,632,870	$2,300,372
Arkansas	1,793,577	1,410,917
Florida	5,492,265	4,544,730
Georgia	3,361,103	3,412,154
Kentucky	4,974,674	4,157,198
Louisiana	4,483,852	3,553,508
Mississippi	1,601,168	1,101,117
North Carolina	5,317,183	4,336,324
S. Carolina	2,417,510	1,011,375
Tennessee	3,976,425	3,316,660
Virginia	4,775,590	4,362,718

and Ready," a Mermaid educational comedy.
Adolph Menjou, Lillian Rich, Allen Pringle and others make up the rest of the bill, which was handled with tactful artistry by Director Frank Little in making "A Kiss in the Dark."

Douglas MacLean.
(At the Metropolitan)
Douglas MacLean personally supervised every step in the production of his latest comedy triumph, "Introduce Me," at the Metropolitan theater. That why it is so successful is funny. Every foot has the MacLean smile tucked in somewhere.

WALTER BROWER TAKES HEADLINE PLACE AT FORSYTH

Walter Brower, "The Jolly Jester," whose jokes are new, whose smile is contagious and whose stage presence savors of the "old masters" is decidedly the biggest attraction of the vaudeville bill at Keith's Forsyth theater the last half of this week.
In the opinion of the writer, a more finished comedian, of the purely monologue type, has never been seen on the local vaudeville stage. His lines are clever, and he did his "stuff" without the aid of comic make-up, which is a hard task unless the artist is clever.
The "Howard Land" contained some exceptionally good harmony with the wind instruments.
The "Three Lordons" in a tumbling act, which is a new member of the vaudeville program and their offering was accepted by the audience with more than passing enthusiasm. The pretty feminine member of the trio is a dancer of talent and her two companions put over some thrills with the trapeze and net.
Endowed with really good soprano voices and a knack for harmony, "Those Deere Girls" were received with enthusiasm. Their songs are pretty and their playlets contribute very greatly to their act.
Mac Melville and George Rule presenting "The League of Servants" are a decided hit with their funny lines and clever presentation. Miss Melville, as the rather "hard boiled" walking delegate of the servants' union, was a scream.
A "Felix Cat" picture entitled "In Darkest Africa" and a Pathe News reel complete the list for the last half of the week.
DICK HAWKINS.

PACKING PLANT TO BE OPERATED BY WAYCROSS MAN

Waycross, Ga., April 30.—(Special.) Work was started today on installing machinery and making improvements at the packing plant, to be operated by the P. and B. Packing company, of this city, which is owned by W. C. Faulkner and W. A. Barnes, was recently purchased from the Waycross Light and Power company, and was a number of years ago as a packing plant.
The plant will be equipped with the very latest packing machinery and will provide Waycross and territory with a fine small packing plant.

MANY NEW HOMES TO BE ERRECTED IN THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., April 30.—(Special.) Many residences are to be erected on the new subdivisions that are to be laid off in building lots here. J. L. Turner has just completed the purchase of 765 feet of land fronting the new Memorial hospital on Gordon avenue and will have it divided into 10 lots. This is in a growing and popular section and the lots will no doubt sell rapidly.
This in addition to the new subdivision bought by J. B. Jemison, opposite McIntosh park and which is to be divided into building lots, will tend to supply the great demand for desirable lots here.

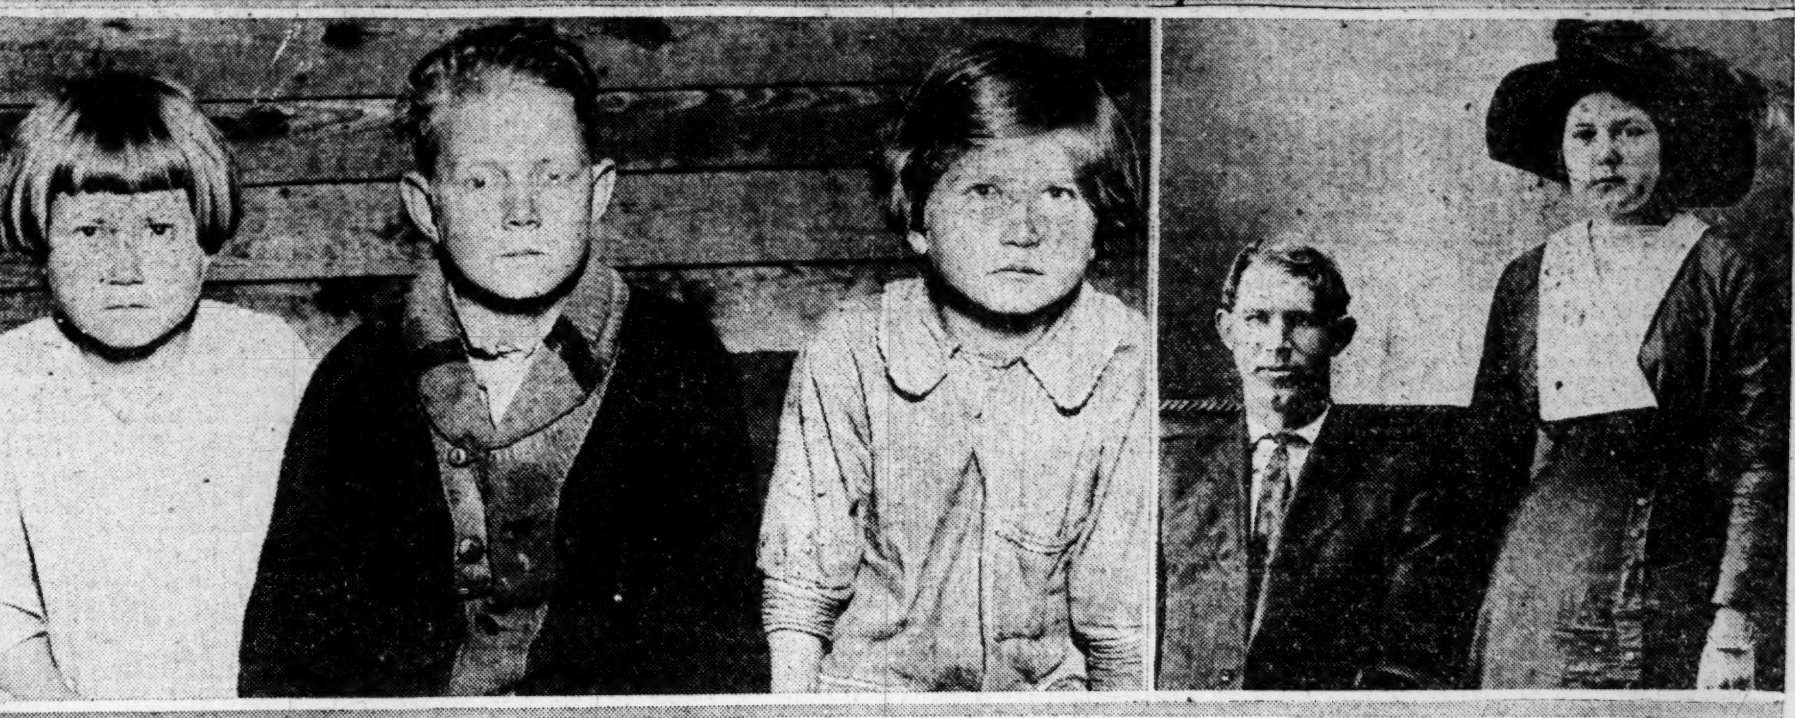

POSED AS OFFICER, COLLECTED FINES, IS FINED HIMSELF

Tampa, Fla., April 30.—W. H. Theel, garage owner of Lakeland, was fined $350 in criminal court here today on a charge of impersonating a county traffic officer and collecting cash bonds from unwary motorists. He promised to aid authorities in finding his accomplice, who, he said, was responsible for his downfall. He was arrested February 4 last in Plant City. He used a high-powered roadster in his operations.

DEATH CAR DRIVER FREED UNDER BOND

Orlando, Fla., April 30.—Harold Goodman, who yesterday was indicted for manslaughter in connection with the running down and killing of Elizabeth Fuller, 5, with an automobile on Tuesday, was released from the Orange county jail this afternoon upon the posting of bond of $3,000.
Goodman was arrested late Tuesday afternoon following his alleged attempt to make his getaway after he had run over and killed the child. Witnesses to the accident stated that Goodman was intoxicated and driving recklessly.

Principals in the DeKalb County Tragedy

Larue, 7; J. W. Howard, 11, and Doris, 9, child ren shown from left to right above, were orphaned Wednesday when John Howard sent two loads from a shotgun crashing through the body of his wife, Mrs. Ethel Bowers Howard, and later turned his pistol on himself, taking both lives. Howard and his wife are shown to the right of the children. The young boy had just told the story of the tragedy to representatives of The Constitution when the picture was made. He stated he would care for his little sisters as he sobbed out the terrible events which had been enacted before him. The orphans were seated on the porch of the home of their grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Bowers, when they posed for the flashlight pictures. The picture of the couple was made shortly after they were married about 12 years ago.

Funeral To Be Held Saturday for Howard and Wife, Victims in DeKalb County Tragedy.

BY P. HICKS CADLE.
Special Staff Correspondent.
Lithonia, Ga., April 30.—(Special.) Out of the heart of a boy just 11 years old, came the story of the tragedy which had cost the life of his sick mother at the hands of his father, who then took his own life, leaving this boy at the head of the home with two younger sisters. But above the horrid details of the murder and suicide there arose in that boy's heart a man's protective instinct in the declaration that with his own hands he would hew out not only his own life but that he would provide for his sisters.

Kills Wife And Self.

This boy is J. W. Howard, his little sisters are Doris, 9, and Larue, 7. They are the orphaned children of John Newton Howard, who killed his wife on a farm about seven miles from Lithonia Wednesday afternoon after an argument of nearly an hour. He then turned the gun on himself, killing her before he pulled the trigger. The lad stated, "but I guess it was not at second, and a bullet went through his brain and he fell to the floor."
"For a few seconds I could not move. I was too scared. Then I ran from the house, calling to my little sisters to follow. We ran most of the way to my grandmother's house and told her. Mrs. J. H. Bowers and my uncle, Paul Bowers, what had happened. We hurried right back home and my father was still alive. Uncle Paul picked him up and loaded him into his automobile and started for Lithonia but soon came back as father had died on the way."
Father Just Mean.
When asked why his father had killed his mother, the little fellow looked up and said, "I don't know unless it was just meanness. He was mean to mama. He threatened to kill her several times. He complained all the time about her being sick so much and having to pay so many doctor bills. Mother was always good to him, as she was to us children. She loved us and we loved her."
At this juncture the little fellow sobbed bitterly. His shoulders shook so hard he seemed almost as if his slender frame would fall to pieces. Suddenly it seemed to dawn upon him just what had happened. A complete realization that he was left fatherless and motherless with two small sisters seemed to take hold of him, but he fought back the tears and declared he would go to work and earn the money for the support of his two sisters and himself. Then he reflected that his grandmother has always been so good and kind and added, "She will help me."

Funeral Saturday.

Funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Howard will take place Sunday afternoon at the Macedonia Baptist church of which they were members, near Lithonia, and interment will be made in the church-yard cemetery.

Investigate Death Of Decomposed Man Found Near Benning

Fort Benning, Ga., April 30.—Brigadier General Briant H. Wells, commandant of Fort Benning, this morning convened a summary court for an investigation to determine whether a decomposed body found last night in the Chattahoochee river just below the reservation is that of a soldier.
The body clad in civilian clothes was found by a farmer on the Alabama side of the river and was brought to the army post by order of the provost marshal. A report was brought to the post several weeks ago that passengers aboard a river boat had seen a body in the river but a search was unsuccessful at that time.
The body found last night is in an advanced stage of decomposition rendering identification difficult.

TAYLORSVILLE SOCIETY TO MEET SATURDAY

Taylorsville, Ga., April 30.—(Special.)—The Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church will hold the May meeting at the church Saturday with the special topic, "The Sisterhood of Church Women," and the Bible lesson, "A Friendly Appreciation of an Alien."

At that time a junior society will be organized and also the baby division.

'BONE DRY' INDIANA DUE WITH NEW LAW

Indianapolis, April 30.—Armed with added authority contained in a "bone dry" law passed by the 1925 legislature, federal and local officials believe Indiana now can be made extra dry. The new law is now effective.
The "bone dry" law is a codification of many old laws relating to prohibition enforcement, but penalties provided in former laws are increased and enforcement officers given more latitude in making arrests and in presenting testimony.
One of the principal features is that the purchaser of liquor is held equally as guilty as the vendor. Imprisonment of 30 days to six months and a fine of from $100 to $500 may be imposed upon a person who purchases intoxicating liquor. The same penalties may be inflicted for possession of intoxicating liquor or for carrying liquor on the person. The selling or giving away of liquor also merits the same penalties.
The work of enforcement agents is facilitated by the provision that the smell of liquor may be used as prima facie evidence of the operation of a blind tiger. Heretofore, it has been necessary to produce fluid liquor as evidence. Agents say this has been difficult because the law violators in many instances have been able to destroy the intoxicants.

Authority is given conductors on common carriers and persons in charge of public places to arrest anyone seen violating the dry law.

Marshals Close Gay Resorts With Padlocks in New York

NEW YORK, April 30.—United States marshals, with a bag full of padlocks, today visited six cabarets and restaurants where the padlocks were clamped on for periods of from four to six weeks for violations of the prohibition laws.

At the same time, the marshals removed the padlocks from the Piping Rock restaurant, one of the first to accept the padlock decree with the consent of its owners. All the places closed today accepted the short term closing voluntarily, rather than fight the cases in court. Each accepted also a permanent injunction against the Brook restaurant and the club Borgo sale of liquor.

Capital Stock Increased.

Columbia, S. C., April 30.—Authority to increase its capital stock has been granted the F. W. Brown Lumber company, of Greenville, according to an announcement by Secretary of State W. P. Blackwell. The stock of the company was increased from $10,000 to $60,000, as a result, it is said.
The directors of the company are F. W. Brown, E. M. Hicks and Nelle Y. Brown.

TAXI DRIVER'S SLAYER SENTENCED TO DEATH

DeLand, Fla., April 30.—Charles Brown, convicted yesterday for the second time of the murder of Howard D. "Red" Usher, Daytona taxicab driver, today was sentenced by Judge J. J. Dickinson to be electrocuted.

Attorney John E. Peacock filed notice of an appeal and was given 90 days in which to file a bill of exceptions. Brown was returned to the Volusia county jail.

MEXICAN FREE PORTS ORDERED CLOSED

Mexico City, April 30.—A presidential decree, effective tomorrow, abolishes the Mexican free ports which have led a precarious existence since their establishment by Provisional President De la Huerta on October 6, 1920.
The ports affected include Guaymas, in the state of Sonora; Puerto Mexico, in Vera Cruz, and Rincon Antonio and Salina Cruz, in Oaxaca.

BOYS RULE NEW YORK ORDER SCHOOL HOLIDAY

New York, April 30.—Children, as well as adults, seemed convinced that New York's greatest need is more subways, for when Joel Walker, 14, took office today as the city's boy mayor for the day—part of the boy's week celebration—he voiced a clear call for underground transit.
Due to traffic jams, on subway and elevated lines, Mayor Joel was 35 minutes late in getting on the job. As he took his seat to preside over the meeting of the board of estimates—likewise composed of boys—he assured the temporarily retired Mayor Hyman that he wouldn't have been tardily had there been sufficient subways in operation.
"More subways, yes," Hyman replied, "but how do you stand on the 3-cent fare?"

Mayor Joel put it to a vote of his fellows, representing 500,000 boys in Manhattan alone, and there was an immediate eager decree in favor of the nickel fare.

The boys had things pretty much their own way for the time. Henry Wright, 15, as president of the board of education, exercised a prerogative long dreamed of by boys—he ordered the schools closed for half a day tomorrow so that 80,000 boys may march in Fifth avenue.

Sidney Cramor, 14, was city comptroller; a 12-year-old boy was police commissioner; a lad of 16 lorded it over the fire department, a 15-year-old youngster was health commissioner—every executive office in the city, including the five borough presidencies, was occupied by a boy in his teens.

$6,421,000 JUDGMENT AWARDED RAILROAD

Washington, April 30.—An award of $6,421,000 was made to the Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad today by the interstate commerce commission under the guaranty provisions of the transportation act.

The sum, added to previous payments, makes a total of $16,521,000 the company has received to make up losses sustained by it in operating for the first six months after the termination of the war-time federal control.

LOOK TO LEGISLATORS TO BANISH COLD SPELL

Tallahassee, April 30.—Steam heat was turned on in the capitol today as the result of chilly breezes that blew up early last night, driving the mercury downward. Indications were that it would be turned off, however, as debate got in full swing on the important measures before the house and senate.

LAWYER ACCUSED OF BRIBERY PLOT

Chicago, April 30.—Earl P. Clark testified today in the resounding indictment to the death of William M. McClintock that he had been offered a $5,000 bribe by an attorney for William D. Shepherd, under indictment charged with the murder of McClintock, to sign an affidavit in which Clark said he never had seen Clark. Clark is former employee of McClintock, who he operated a science school, where Faiman testified he taught Shepherd how to administer typhoid germs. He testified a sentence's bull hearing after Shepherd's attorneys charged Clark was being coerced.

Two Interviews. Today Clark said he had two interviews with W. S. Stewart, Shepherd's counsel arranged by A. B. Benziger, reporter for the Chicago Evening American.

Clark said Stewart at one interview appeared in the newspaper office with some whisky and that three had had drinks. Benziger told him, Clark alleged, that he was likely to be charged with murder as a result of an alleged illegal operation but that they would set up a defense.

Clark testified that Stewart and Benziger said they wanted him to sign an affidavit that the accusation against Shepherd was a frame-up between the state's attorney, himself, Faiman and J. P. Marchand, former agent for Faiman's school.

Refused $5,000 Bribe. Later, Clark said, Stewart called him to his office and offered $5,000 if he would sign the affidavit. Clark said he refused to do so.

Clark said he was next approached by John E. Jones, head of a private detective agency, whom he said he had first met in company with Benziger. Jones came to him after his second conference with Shepherd's attorney, Clark said, and told him he could get Shepherd to give him $50,000 if Clark would "split with Jones."

"Jones said he could guarantee me $10,000 at least," said Clark. "I refused. Jones finally told me that I didn't sign the affidavit I would never be able to get employment, and I would wish I had died when I was a baby."

Clark identified a business card bearing the name of Faiman with a series of initials purporting, apparently, to stand for degrees. On the reverse side, as Clark testified, was a note signed "C. C. Jones."

Former Judge Charles Cutting said that two women came to him in the morning before McClintock died and said they were friends of Shepherd's wife. They said that young McClintock was about to be married and they feared he might die and leave his wife mother penniless. Mr. Cutting said they asked him to tell McClintock that they did not appreciate his mother's kindness, but that they wanted to do so. Upon leaving, they said Mrs. Shepherd did not know of their visit, he testified.

John E. Waters, another witness and an attorney, said Henry M. Guthrie, "who gets accident cases for attorneys," investigated for him and reported that Eva Nelson, one of the witnesses to McClintock's will in which he left nearly all his estate to Shepherd, said she signed the document in the morning after Shepherd had brought it to her, and that only Shepherd had been present.

Mrs. Anna Beckford, who said she was a nurse of William McClintock 16 years ago, testified that she had given her some medicine when she had a cold. After taking the medicine, she said, she had symptoms which caused Mrs. McClintock to have her removed to a hospital for treatment. Mrs. Shepherd, the witness testified, manifested displeasure at Mrs. McClintock's interest.

Shepherd Not Present. When the inquest was resumed, William D. Shepherd, charged with having murdered his father-in-law by typhoid inoculation, and his attorneys, declined to attend.

Although Shepherd is in jail pending trial for May 18, he was given an opportunity to attend the session today.

With the finding of a verdict in the McClintock case the jury will take up the inquests into the death of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of "Billy" McClintock, 16 years ago, and of Dr. Oscar Olson. The older's chemist already has reported finding enough poison in the body of Mrs. McClintock to cause death within 10 days.

BOW BARELY HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO
J. E. Jenkins, Jr., 14, of 172 South Ashby street, probably was seriously injured Thursday night, when struck from his bicycle by an automobile driven by W. C. Whitaker, 302 Lee street, at Whitehall and Oak streets. Whitaker stopped his car immediately and carried the boy to Grady hospital, where an X-ray showed a close fracture of the skull. The victim suffered severe bruises and lacerations about the body.

At the request of the boy's father no case was made against Whitaker by Call Officers Cheving and Lee, who investigated.

WOMAN REHEARSES KILLING OF QUINN NEAR ROSSVILLE
Chattanooga, Tenn., April 30.—H. E. Martin, one of three persons held in connection with the killing of Duane Quinn, near Rossville, Ga., several months ago, was returned to LaFayette, Ga., today for trial on May 11. Benah Killebrew and Dr. J. H. Martin are held in jail at LaFayette in connection with the case.

The woman was taken to the scene of the alleged crime yesterday and rehearsed incidents of the killing in the presence of Attorney General G. W. Chalmers, of this county, and Sheriff Harmon, of Walker county. She had previously made confession, the officers say, in which she claimed that Quinn was killed for the purpose of robbery.

RAISED POSTAL MONEY ORDER

WHERE DOES HE HIDE 'EM? OFFICERS ASK Sent Inspector by Prisoner

After he serves his three-year term in the federal prison, following his conviction on a charge of looting mail boxes, Niles M. Jones alias C. B. Price ought to be able to get a job as a magician because he is a star in this kind of work.

When officials were ready to take Jones, alias Price, to the prison Thursday they searched him and found two steel bars, but they "ain't all," according to Mr. Knight.

"This man has been searched four times to my certain knowledge and searched thoroughly, yet he managed to escape a postal money order and it escaped all the searches," Mr. Knight said. "Jones had raised this money order to read $80 and as a farewell token he sent it to me Thursday by a jailer."

In addition to hiding the saws and the money order Jones had several other articles in his clothing he was not supposed to possess.

Several weeks ago Jones alias Price escaped from Fulton tower by working a clever ruse. He passed himself off as another prisoner and when the time came to release that prisoner Jones walked out to freedom. He was recaptured in Louisville and Lottie Young of New York. Jones was recaptured in Louisville and brought back to Atlanta where he entered a plea of guilty and was given a sentence of three years.

Judge Samuel Sibley Thursday sentenced the Young woman to serve two weeks in jail for her part in aiding Jones to escape. She had served four weeks in jail, making a total sentence of six weeks.

GOV. DONAHUE PLANS READING OF BIBLE
Columbus, Ohio, April 30.—The Buchanan Bible bill, passed by the recent session of the Ohio general assembly, to make daily reading of the Bible in all public schools of Ohio compulsory, has been the subject of much discussion today.

Contrary to expectations, the governor did not make any comment on the action of various factions in the legislature which supported or opposed the bill. The bill was actively supported by Ku Klux Klan members of both branches of the assembly.

In considering the veto message said "Let us remember that it was the hope and desire for religious freedom that inspired the setting and founding of the United States of America."

Model for World. "The founders of our country, having in mind their own sacrifices in obtaining liberty of religious thought and seeking to hand down to their children this hard-earned freedom, unimpaired for all time, were careful to write the doctrine of separation of church and state into the federal constitution. The makers of the constitution of Ohio did likewise and their action was ratified by the people. All the states of the union are in accord on this vital principle. Ohio is not ready as yet to secede, and it is to be hoped it never will, from the principles of civil and religious freedom which have made our government the model for the world."

The governor then cited a bill passed by the legislature two years ago over his veto, accepting as state property the John Bryan farm on terms prohibiting forever any form of religious practice thereon.

Religion to Parents. "In the one instance the general assembly forbade religious worship in a portion of our state. In the other the assembly seeks to compel the state to teach religious doctrine to the children of Ohio without regard to the teachings received at their mothers' knees. It is my belief that religious teaching should be left to parents and churches by the good mothers, fathers and ministers of Ohio is far preferable to compulsory teaching of religion by the state."

The governor further held that the bill was unnecessary, because under existing Ohio law when the people of civil and religious freedom are denied by the state, the people may require the reading of the Bible in the public schools.

Blitter Fight. The governor's disapproval of the bill marks the end of one of the most interesting religious fights waged in the Ohio legislature in recent years. The measure, introduced by Representative Fred E. Edwards, of Zebulon, a farmer, sought to compel all public school teachers of the state to read ten verses from the Bible to the pupils every school day. It also would have compelled every pupil beyond the fourth grade to memorize the Ten Commandments.

Religious factions and other organizations took sides on the question of the passage of the measure and throughout its stormy route through committees and on the floors of the house and senate the galleries were packed with spectators interested in the outcome.

REMEDY FOR LAXITY OF YOUTHS' MORALS OFFERED BY SUTTON
Austin, Texas, April 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Remedy for the laxity of morals among young people can be found in more home training, more outdoor activities and more wholesome instruction, Dr. Willis A. Sutton, president of the Georgia Education association, said tonight before the national congress of parents and teachers.

Dr. Sutton declared transition from one type of civilization to another and the rapid succession of modern gadgets had caused the modern youth to suffer from moral intoxication.

"Our youth is purer than youth of olden days, but in many cases, he has not had the proper environment, which has caused over-stimulation of the sex appeal," he said.

ANOTHER COUPLE CROSS STATE LINE FOR WEDDING KNOT

Cupid again thwarted Georgia's legal ban against marrying without publicly advertising the intention for five days, when C. Steele Blanton, 415 Kennesaw avenue, persuaded Miss Mildred A. Farmer, of Nashville, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Thomas James, 523 North Jackson street, to accompany him to Chattanooga where marriages lack the red tape required in this state.

Accompanied by a friend, R. K. Parsons, 101 Marietta street, the couple boarded a Tennessee-bound train and arrived at 9 o'clock Sunday night. Hurrying to the office of the county clerk, a license was obtained and the ceremony performed by Rev. Homer C. Carpenter, pastor of Chattanooga's First Christian church—arrangements having been made previously by telegram.

News of the wedding was wired friends and relatives and the marriage formally announced in Atlanta Thursday. The couple will spend ten days honeymooning in Tennessee and then will return here, where Mr. Blanton is employed by the Oconee Lumber company. They will reside at 190 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Oakdale Road Home

THIS is very close to Ponce de Leon avenue, and is in a section where every house is a personal home and few are offered for sale. There are nine rooms and two baths; beautiful brick exterior with slate roof; the house was built for a home and the very best of material used throughout; interior trim is all hardwood, steam heat; there is a garage large enough for three cars; it also is built of brick with slate roof, matching the dwelling; there are two bedrooms. Anyone at all familiar with building costs knows that it is an utter impossibility to buy a 100-foot lot in any first-class residential community and erect such a home as we have described with garage, servants' room, driveway, fireplace, and shrubbery for less than $20,000 to $25,000. We are offering this home for $20,000 and can give very good terms; would like cash offer.
